A Mother's Dilemma.
Three Cheers for 1928.

MRS. RUTH SNYDER, to be killed in the electric chair by the State of New York, some time in January, faces this problem. Shall she send for her six-year-old daughter to see her in the death house once more before she dies?

THE child's grandmother feels that a meeting and "last kiss" would be unjust to the child, sending her through life with a horrible memory always in mind of her mother in the death cell waiting to be killed.

MRS. SNYDER'S problem is one that few mothers, fortunately, have to face. How would you decide it for her?

Perhaps Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who has great respect for womanhood and cannot but sympathize with the unfortunate little daughter of the condemned woman, will find a way out of the problem by deciding to let New York State send the guilty woman to prison for life instead of killing her in the electric chair.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY'S commission on "economic research" is predicting prosperity for 1928, sees nothing to worry business, finance or anything else well managed, no danger in "unwieldy inventories, overproduction or trouble in transportation."

JAMES SPEYER, an able banker, whose father, grandfather and great-grandfather were in finance before him, says: "Why ask 'how long will prosperity last'? This country's normal condition is prosperity. If we act like sensible men, prosperity should last indefinitely, like health in a healthy man. Our national inheritance is incalculable, inexhaustible. Why should this nation be anything but prosperous as long as it retains energy and common sense?"

THE Harvard University commission favors a continuation of an "easy money" policy by the Federal Reserve Bank. A sane recommendation. In the world's richest country only usurious money lenders would desire anything but easy money, which to prosperity, industry and new enterprises, is like water and fertilizer to the soil.

BUCHAREST wires news of a bloody rebellion and anarchy in the Ukraine, hundreds killed in street fighting, civilians fighting soldiers, cannon fire all along the Dniester River. But this rebellion against the Bolshevik government will amount, probably, to no more than the rebellion of convicts in California's Folsom prison. A few killed, then surrender.

ABRAHAM CAHAN of New York, who knows Russian affairs as well as any man in America, says no rebellion against Bolshevism can amount to anything now.

Sovietism gave the peasants lands on which formerly they were slaves of an extravagant, drunken nobility.

No successful counter-revolution can come in Russia without the peasants, and they haven't finished rejoicing over their land ownership yet.

CHICAGO has found in Detroit a blonde beauty with long hair, and exhibited a Lady Godiva, aided by a wax model, at last night's Arts ball. Rosalind Hightower, the Lady Godiva without horse, rode to Chicago from Detroit in an airplane, and posed for a fleeting second in a picture frame, hair and all. She sees nothing immodest in a beautiful lady dressed only in her hair, and says: "To me a short fat woman in an abbreviated skirt is vulgar, the human body is a thing of beauty."

SNEAK thieves stole three overcoats, belonging to Gov. Smith and his son, Alfred E. Smith, Jr. The latter refused to prosecute, saying he didn't feel like putting anybody in jail so near Christmas.

He had read the fortieth verse, fifth chapter of St. Matthew, "And if any man take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak."

SAN FRANCISCO is expected to to get the Republican convention next year, with twenty-three national committeemen now pledged. That is the place for the convention. Many important Republicans need to visit San Francisco, learn something about the United States on the way, and something about national development after they get there.

THE good old solid British pound sterling was worth yesterday $4.87 15-16, the highest price since 1914. The British have confidence in themselves and their empire, a great asset, and while they make mistakes they still "muddle through." We shall do well if we keep our currency even with theirs.

ONE KILLED, 2 SHOT IN GANG WAR

A volley of bullets fired in a gun battle last night at Fifth avenue and Congress street killed one man and wounded two others. The dead man is James Muitta, of Gilmore way. In the Mercy Hospital, suffering from bullet wounds, are Tony Rastini, of 74 Congress street, one of the alleged assassins, and Joseph Grelo, 35, of 1248 Broadway, McKees Rocks.

The shooting is the late t chapter of Pittsburgh's Italian factional feud, which, according to police, is being staged by the Neapolitan and Sicilian societies.

At 10 o'clock Muitta and Grelo, after leaving a poolroom in upper Fifth avenue, were walking down Fifth avenue. At Congress street, a volley of bullets was fired at them by Rastini, who had been stalking them, according to police. Muitta, with the top of his head shot away, fired several shots at his assailant. Grelo also returned the fire and Rastini dropped with a bullet in his leg.

According to a cab driver, directly across the street at the time of the shooting, Rastini was the man who shot at Grelo and Muitta. He said Rastini had a gun in each hand and was only about three paces behind the victims when he opened fire with both pistols.

As Rastini attacked from the rear, and other gangster approaching Muitta and Grelo from the front, also opened fire with two revolvers. When he saw Grelo and Muitta return the

A Helping Hand

WHILE the Thanksgiving spirit is still with us and the time of peace on earth and goodwill approaching, it is meet to consider the needs of those helpless ones who face the Christmas season only with foreboding.

The Sun-Telegraph, in co-operation with charity organizations of the city, has undertaken to present to you the plight of these less fortunate.

The 20 Neediest Cases will be described to you in Sunday's Sun-Telegraph, so that you may have opportunity of helping them before Christmas.

Sun-Tele Auxiliary to Aid Toy Mission

Collection centers are established in various districts to which toys may be brought and they will be delivered to the Toy Mission.

SANTA CLAUS, THE SUN-TELE AND THE TOY MISSION—they're working hand in hand in a happy plan to bring new joy at Christmas time to the boys and girls in Pittsburgh's needy families and to many of those other little folk who have no parental home.

And the plan, moreover, means a joyous Yuletide for everybody, because those more fortunate men and women, and children, too, will make their own holidays brighter by joining in the giving that permeates the holiday.

THE SUN-TELE HAS ESTABLISHED AN AUXILIARY TO THE TOY MISSION. It will assist in every possible manner in making this the most successful year in the Toy Mission's history, and invites the support of the generous public in gifts which will result in A CHRISTMAS TOY FOR EVERY CHILD IN PITTSBURGH.

You all know of the work of the Toy Mission. For 34 years it has collected used and discarded toys, and after these have been repaired or brightened up they are distributed on Christmas Eve.

The Sun-Tele Toy Mission Auxiliary has been established to assist in the Toy Mission's work.

Search the cupboards, the garage loft and the attic; you are certain to find articles that will give never-ending joy to those little people who may be looking forward with doubt as to whether Christmas will brighten their lives.

Send the toys or bring them to The Sun-Tele, or to any of The Sun-Tele receiving stations and they will be turned over promptly to the mission for assortment, repairs and distribution.

DEATH ENTERS CASE

Tragedy today climaxed the case of George J. Vogel, 42, North Side chain store owner, who has been missing two weeks from his home, 423 North School street, Avalon.

Robert L. Vogel, 17, son of the missing man, died at 3:45 a. m. in St. John's General Hospital of peritonitis following an operation Sunday for appendicitis. The youth was a right guard on the Avalon High School football team and his death is believed to be indirectly due to injuries sustained in a game with Bellevue High School about a week ago.

Robert was one of six children. He leaves two sisters, Virginia and Caroline, and three brothers, George, Jr., Donald and Dale. He was in his junior year in high school and president of the Avalon High School class of '29; president of the school Y. M. C. A. and athletic reporter of the high school paper. With other members of his family he was a communicant in the Avalon United Presbyterian Church.

Members of the family today expressed the belief that news of the boy's death will result in the father's return. The investigation by detectives is said to have developed no new facts.

Jaworski Aid Accuses Sam

A confession has been obtained by Montreal police from Stanley Bodzinkowski, alias Bodsiak, that he took part in the $104,000 Coverdale payroll robbery last spring and that Sam Jaworski, now held in jail here, was implicated.

Word to this effect was received by wire today by Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren from Detective John W. Geisler, who arrested Bodzinowski following a tip from Detroit.

Bodzinkowski, Murren brought out, was indicted by a grand jury in Criminal Court at the same time Sam Jaworski, Paul's brother, was held for court trial. Highway robbery is the charge against him.

Bodzinkowski was arrested by Detective John W. Geisler, of Pittsburgh, following a tip several days ago that came with the arrest of Steve Meshik in Detroit. A letter from Bodzinkowski was found in Meshik's pocket, in which information concerning Bodzinkowski's activities was found. A photograph of Bodzinkowski is said to have been identified by Joe Weckoski, the Washington county farmer, who figured in the payroll holdup probe, as one of the gang who hid on his farm after the Coverdale holdup.

The letter found in the Detroit gangster's possession tells how Bodzinkowski was smuggled out of the country to Canada. Chief Murren said detectives had been searching for the man in Canada since last summer.

6 'HARDEST' CONVICTS FACE GALLOWS AS LEADERS OF BLOODY PRISON RIOT

GUNS FORCE TIMID INTO REVOLT

By International News Service.

FOLSOM STATE PRISON, Cal., Nov. 26.—With the toll of dead remaining at 11, nine convicts and two guards, and with three other convicts near death from wounds and 24 others, including prisoners, guards and prison officials, seriously but not dangerously wounded, prison authorities today prepared to fix responsibility for the bloody Thanksgiving Day prison riot here.

Six convicts—a "lifer" and killer, three robbers, a burglar and a forger—six men designated as "hard" even by the other prison inmates—have been singled out as ringleaders of the attempted prison break. They were facing gallows today for their part in the rioting.

Tony Brown, gangster, is thought to have been the leading factor in the revolt. It was Brown, according to prison officials, who wielded the revolver and who moved among the other convicts, urging and threatening when some of the more timid wished to capitulate.

Prison officials believe that but 20 per cent of the prisoners were in sympathy with the revolt. The others were intimidated by the determined pressure of the minority.

While prisoners were restoring to order the interior of the buildings wrecked by the rioting, the National Guard units called out, in anticipation of storming tactics, had returned to their homes. Tanks, machine guns and other implements of warfare, most of which were never used, had been removed from their positions outside of the prison walls and the scene of the bloody uprising today was gradually returning to normal.

CONVICT BROKER OF FRAUD

Andrew M. Lucas, a broker, with offices formerly in the Bowman Building, was convicted of a misdemeanor by a jury in Criminal Court before Judge Nelson McVicar. He was accused of fraudulently converting to his own use securities of Augustus Pope, who was joined in the prosecution by his daughters, Lettie and Frieda, all three being well known as proprietors of roadhouses and cabarets, principally the Casa da Campo on the Butler Pike, the Cliff Mine Inn and the El Tower. Pope for many years conducted a hotel in the West End.

NOTED STAGE STARS WHITE HOUSE GUESTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—President and Mrs. Coolidge had as their luncheon guests at the White House yesterday, Mrs. Fiske, Otis Skinner and Henrietta Crosman, noted stars of the drama who are playing a Shakespearean engagement in Washington, and Harrison Grey Fiske, theatrical producer, who is the husband of Mrs. Fiske.

based upon interrogation of Remus and observation of him in the court room since the trial started November 14. It might be changed later, they said.

The report was not read to the jury. Judge Shook asserted that he accepted it at this time for his own guidance. Had it found Remus insane, Remus would not have been permitted to continue as his own chief counsel, the court asserted from the bench.

WORKER BEATEN BY TRAMP

Beaten with a wrench by a Negro tramp, Alonso Cauthary, 51, of 118 Madison avenue fell 20 feet from a ladder in the plant of Lucie Brothers, scrap dealers, Galveston avenue and Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, early this morning.

Cauthary was taken to Allegheny General Hospital suffering from lacerations of the head and two fractured ribs.

Ascending the ladder to the cab of a crane to tend a fire, Cauthary was attacked by the Negro. He was beaten over the head until he fell. The Negro escaped.

FOUR SERVICES FOR V. OF A.

Four services will be held in Pittsburgh Sunday by the Volunteers of America, two for children and two for adults. Two will be in the downtown mission of the Volunteers and two in the East End mission.

Maja. Frank H. Wise and Josephine D. Wise, Western Pennsylvania commanders of the Volunteers, will be the principal speakers at the downtown mission, Volunteer Building.

TRAIN HITS AUTO; 1 DEAD, 1 HURT

When their automobile was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad train at the Wood street crossing in Tarentum last night, Carl Sterling, 25, of 114 West Ninth street, Tarentum, was killed and his companion, William Westerman, 616 East Tenth avenue, was probably fatally injured. Westerman is in the Allegheny Valley Hospital suffering from internal injuries and a broken collar bone.

WILL PLACE 50 GIDEON BIBLES IN WORKHOUSE

Fifty Gideon Bibles will be placed in the Allegheny County Workhouse by the Christian Commercial Travelers' Association, Pittsburgh Chapter No. 1, tomorrow afternoon, following dedicatory services at the institution. Among the speakers will be Robert Foster, president of the Pittsburgh chapter; Lloyd C. Thomas, secretary and treasurer, and H. A. Hampton. James R. Cutler, former chaplain of the Pittsburgh chapter, will preside.

HOLD BANDANNA LEADER'S GIRL AS HIJACKER

An echo of the murdering, robbing days of the Blue Bandanna gang was heard today when Anna May Masetti, 22, said by police to be a one-time favorite of the Bandanna gunmen, was arrested with two "pals" who police believe to be hijackers.

Anna May, who was arrested twice during her association with Albert Carelli and his holdup men, was found early today on the North Side with her husband, Joseph M. Masetti, 28, and Ben Zeck, 29, of 75 Vine street. Police told Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court that the trio had halted Mike Schwartz, 1530 Rose street, and searched his car, presumably for illicit liquor.

Masetti described himself as a beer runner, and police said during his first hours in jail he exhibited much curiosity over the fate of an unprotected still at the Vine street address. The three were held for further investigation.

Girl Who Left Baby Held

A quiet, worried girl of 22 slipped into Allegheny General Hospital, a 10-day-old baby in her arms.

"I found it," she said, "under the Tenth street bridge." Before attaches could question her she had disappeared, leaving behind the baby.

She was arrested later at Federal and Ohio streets and today was brought before Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court. She said she was Mildred Lacy, of Connellsville, and she admitted the baby was hers. Magistrate Brandon held her for court on a charge of abandoning a minor child.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—The intersectional football game between Notre Dame and the University of Southern California at Soldier Field here today will be broadcast by many radio stations, including the National Broadcasting Company.

Robert C. Zuppke, coach of the Big Ten Conference champions, Illinois, will be at the microphone for KYW.

CHECK CAUSES MAN'S ARREST

A check for $30 drawn on the Farmers National Bank of Hickory, Pa., and bearing the signature of "A. W. Mellon" in pencil, was presented by a mild-mannered, unkempt man yesterday to a ticket clerk at the East Liberty station of the Pennsylvania railroad with the request for a ticket to Harrisburg.

His request denied, the man went to the station master's office where his queer actions caused him to be taken into custody by railroad police. They learned he was Joseph Kiesac, 54, of Cherry Valley, Washington county, who escaped a week ago from the Dixmont Hospital for the Insane, while at work on the grounds. He was returned to that institution.

NAB 3 YOUTHS AS ROBBERS

Three youths whom city detectives say they believe are responsible for numerous robberies on the South Side, were arrested yesterday when police captured them in a house at 59 Hartford street, where they are alleged to have hidden loot. The prisoners are Andrew Gally, 20, 59 Hartford street; Pete Klepick, 17, no home; and Frank Anthony, 18, 58 Park avenue, Washington, Pa.

City detectives who arrested the youths say that a large quantity of stolen merchandise was recovered. Some of the goods has been identified. The suspects will be arraigned in the South Side Police Court today.

GIRL, 7, SHOT AS BROTHER TAKES SHELLS FROM GUN

UHRICHSVILLE, O., Nov. 26.—Bernice, 7, daughter of George Dill, Deersville Avenue, was shot in the right forearm when the shotgun from which her brother was removing shells, exploded.

PIT STRIKE PARLEY OFF

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—President Coolidge today was understood to have rejected the request of the American Federation of Labor to call operators and miners to a formal arbitration conference in the hope of bringing an end to the eight-months' soft coal tieup.

The President is understood to have decided that the coal industry is undergoing a vast economic change over which the owners and workers have no control, and which a wage conference could not settle.

He is informed that coal consumption has seriously decreased because of the expansion of oil-burning devices, increased use of water-power electricity by industrial factories and of labor-saving devices in industry generally. It will be difficult for the coal operators to sustain the present level of wages in view of that condition, he believes. He is informed that there is an abundant supply of soft-coal from the lower-priced labor mines of the South.

President Coolidge assured President Green of the American Federation of Labor and President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers during their recent conference that the government will seize any opportunity to be helpful in bringing the long tieup to a close, but he is understood to see no reasonable occasion for action at present.

ONE KILLED, TWO SHOT

fire, he fled into Washington street and disappeared. He is believed to have been wounded in the exchange of shots.

Witnesses said that a large touring car stopped in the center of Fifth avenue at the Congress street intersection and occupants called to Rastini to get into the car. When Rastini dropped to the sidewalk wounded, the car moved up Fifth avenue. When the last shot in the battle had been fired, Grelo was lying with Muitta in a pool of blood on the sidewalk. A yard away was Rastini, his leg paralyzed. Six revolvers littered the sidewalk and street.

A dozen bullets crashed through store windows on Fifth avenue.

Patrolman Joseph J. Kohnke was walking up Fifth avenue, en route to the Center Avenue Station, when the firing began. He rushed to the scene, commandeered a taxicab and took the wounded to the Mercy Hospital, where Muitta died a short while later.

Muitta, in the hospital, asked for a priest, saying that he wanted to confess before he died.

City detectives later arrested Giovanni Tangalia, of Broadway, McKees Rocks, when witnesses said he was seen fleeing from the scene with a revolver in his hand. He refused to talk when arrested. He later told police he had been visiting his brother in the Mercy Hospital. The brother, Joseph, was injured about five weeks ago, when his automobile was bombed in Wylie avenue.

LOCK MARSHAL UP, ROB BANK

PINEBLUFF, Ark., Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Locking a town marshal in a box car, five men robbed the Bank of Bearden in Cuachita early today of $30,000 and escaped.

The men, who made their appearance in Bearden yesterday afternoon, seized the marshal, Tom Pierce, as he was making his rounds after midnight, disarmed him, and, after forcing him into the box car, entered the bank building and blew open the safe. The men then fled in an automobile bearing a Texas license.

COST OF MARRIAGE -:- FAILS TO DAUNT -:- "WEALTHIEST NEBRASKAN"

HIS FIRST

Here is the former Madeleine Franke, of San Francisco, whom John Brandeis, the "wealthiest man in Nebraska," heir to $10,000,000, made his first matrimonial venture with. Upon divorce he settled $700,000 upon her and gave her $100,000 in jewels.

THE SECOND

Here is the second Mrs. Brandeis, widow of J. F. Coleman. Brandeis married Mrs. Coleman shortly after his first divorce. This second marital venture didn't last very long, and Brandeis settled $400,000 on her.

DOESN'T PHASE HIM

Undaunted by his unsuccessful dalliance with romance, Brandeis has contracted matrimony again. It has already cost him far more than a million of his great fortune, but he's willing to try the third time.

THE THIRD TIME

Yess, it may be the charm. In his third venture Brandeis has married Claire Blavette, daughter of Victor Blavette, the noted French surgeon and divorced wife of Clement Moore Ogden, Philadelphia sportsman. He met her on a trip abroad.

PAPA WENT OUT WHILE MAMA STAYED IN

"I'M NOT A STAY-AT-HOME!"

Kenneth Harlan went stepping every night, Marie Prevost, his wife, told the judge. The trouble was, Marie, shown here in one of her film scenes, said, that when he stepped she stayed at home. She was granted her divorce.

THOSE DAYS ARE GONE FOREVER

Happy days of their early married life are forever past, Marie says with no little vigor—for if Kenneth won't take her out there are plenty of others who will. This photograph was taken on the honeymoon.

NUMBERS ALL WRONG ALRIGHT

Kenneth's girl friends kept her awake nights calling the husband on the telephone, Marie said, but they would never give their names. Also, she declared Kenneth would call up at 4 A. M. to tell her what a fine time he was having.

"AB-SO-LUTE-LY, JUDGE!"

Vera Stedman, also of the movies, appeared in court with her daughter, Marie in her arms and substantiated Mrs. Harlan's story in many details. Kenneth, she said, was entirely at fault.

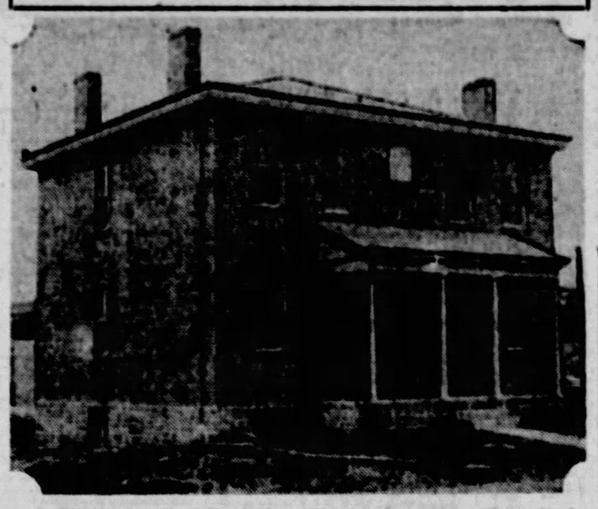
M'CANDLESS TWP SCHOOL VOTE IS TIE

The special election recount board revealed yesterday that John Ehler and Ross C. Mohler were tied in the election for school director of McCandless township. The election board's return gave Mohler three more votes than Ehler. Mohler was Republican and Democratic candidate, while Ehler was running independently with the use of stickers. One ballot which contained the name of "Mr. Ahler" written in the blank space, and would have elected Ehler, but Judge Thomas J. Ford advised that the vote should not be credited to Ehler.

On several ballots the special board found that stickers for Ehler had been pasted over Mohler's name. These were not counted for either candidate.

TO DEDICATE NEW UNIT



The first unit of the Stanton Heights Community Evangelical Church in Stanton avenue, consisting of the newly built community house, will be dedicated tomorrow afternoon. A Sunday school session will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Dedicatory services will be held at 3:30 o'clock. The Rev. Charles R. Zahniser, executive secretary, Pittsburgh Council of Churches, will deliver the principal address. The Rev. R. C. Miller, of Indiana, Pa., presiding elder, Pittsburgh Conference, and Charles R. Hall, representing the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association, also will speak. The Rev. J. G. Knippel, pastor of the Fifty-second Street Evangelical Church, is pastor also of the Stanton Heights church.

RESCUED AS HOUSE BURNS

Hurled under a kitchen table by a gas blast which wrecked the interior of her two-room apartment at 1243 Voskamp street at 7:30 o'clock this morning, Mrs. Louise Dittrich, 78, widow, her clothing ablaze, struggled to a window and was dragged out of the home by a pedestrian. After the flames in her clothing had been extinguished, she was taken to Allegheny General Hospital, where it was stated she probably will die.

The house caught fire and the first floor was damaged. The explosion had wrecked the interior, knocking out windows and hurling the front door across the street.

The second floor was occupied by Mrs. Dittrich's daughter, Mrs. Anna Andricek, and her five children, Joseph, 21; Albert, 19; John, 17; William, 13, and Dorothy, 9. They were aroused by the blast and escaped. Their apartment was only slightly damaged.

Firemen who extinguished the flames stated that Mrs. Dittrich evidently had been in the kitchen of her apartment when leaking gas was ignited. Damage to the house was estimated at $1,500.

REMUS IN COURT

EX-KING OF OHIO BOOTLEGGERS AS HE APPEARS IN COURT

George Remus, indicated by the arrow, on trial at Cincinnati, accused of murdering his second wife, Imogene. Remus, a former lawyer, acts as his own counsel. He speaks repetedly during the trial of "the defendant Remus," never using the first person while addressing the court of talking to news reporters. His associate counsel, Charles Elston, is seated at his left.

WAX "TWIN" PINCH HITS FOR LADY GODIVA

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Two Godivas, one real, the other wax, brought the annual arts ball to an anti-climactic close at 1:30 this morning.

Three thousand revelers who had come to see how life is to be lived in 2000 A. D., and who had been told in publicity prose for a fortnight that Lady Godiva would be recreated in her original artistic undrape, met disappointment.

They had been warned beforehand that Lady Godivawould be without her legendary horse, and they bore up under this departure from the Coventry story with becoming fortitude. They had reconciled themselves to a pedentary Godiva, posing unclad in a gilt frame; and they were willing, for the sake of art, to forego horse, with the understanding that the appearance of Lady Godiva herself—in the person of Miss Rosalind Hightower, Detroit artist—would suffice to refresh their memories concerning this epic episode in the history of Olde Coventry.

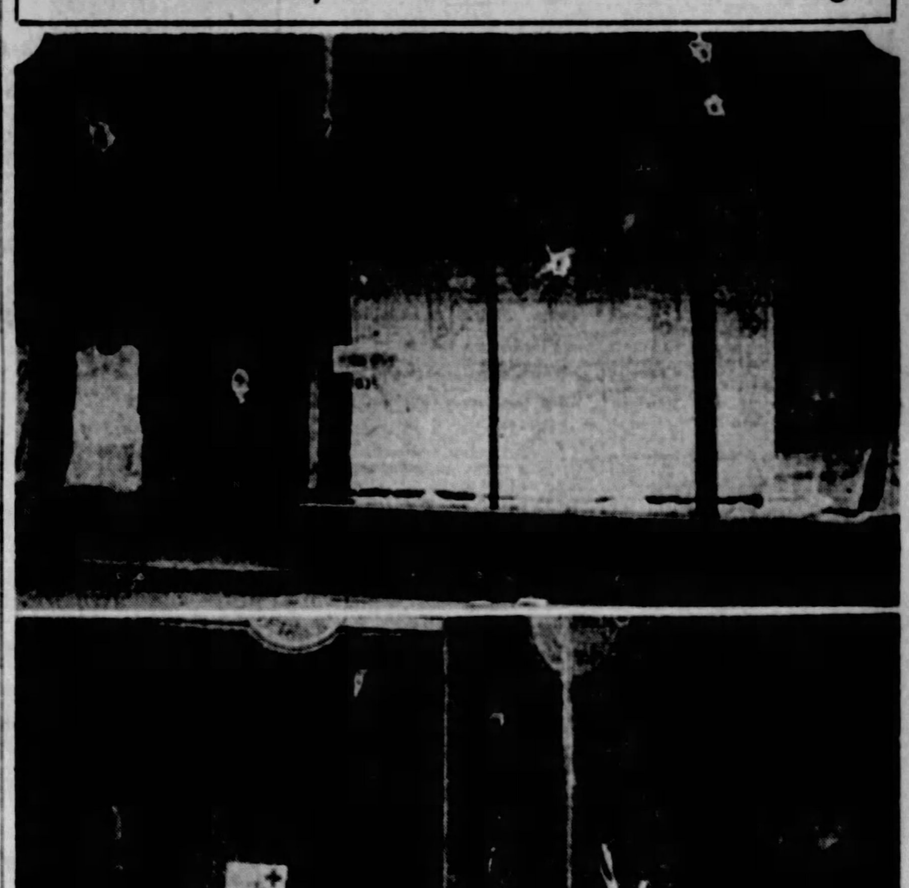
But they took umbrage at wax. And even then, so quickly did the curtains close, they got only a kaleidoscopic view of the study in paraffin.

When the curtains were parted again the wax figure had disappeared. In its place stood Miss Hightower, clad in a gossamer material and posed so nearly like the paraffin statue that many did not know the difference.

If the sage hand who manipulated the curtains had been rehearsed better, the Godiva finale might have been more successful. Miss Hightower was to have stepped from her gilt frame and advance to the front of the stage to give the legend-minded audience an opportunity of seeing what Lady Godiva looked like.

But the stagehand got his cues mixed and dropped the curtains before she could take a step. Thus the customers were denied the sight of Godiva in motion.

One Dead, 2 Hurt in Hill Fray



GANG FEUD FLAMES UP AGAIN

Feud warfare of rival Hill factions flared up again at Fifth avenue near Congress street, when one man was slain and two wounded. Photographs show windows in the district riddled by bullets.

IN DANGER ZONE

Patrolman J. J. Kohnke was walking up Fifth avenue but a few hundred feet away when the outburst of shots came. By the time he could reach the scene the gangsters, save the dead and wounded, had dispersed.

SEEKING CANDY, YUKON INFANT POISONS SELF

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 26.—In search of sweets, Marie, 18-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Myers of Yukon, crawled to the kitchen cupboard and ate 10 medicinal tablets. She died of convulsions a few hours later.

FORBES, FREE, WOULD GILD HARDING

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Announcing his most important mission in life would be to "correct the erroneous impression the public has been given of President Harding," Col. Charles R. Forbes today returned to civilian life after completing service on a two-year term in the federal penitentiary here.

The 49-year-old former director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, who was convicted in Chicago in 1925 of defrauding the government in awarding contracts for veterans hospitals, was released at midnight.

He described the present-day penitentiary as "nothing more than a combination prison and insane asylum; a school for post-graduate work in crime, specializing in moral perversity."

HOUSEBREAKING SUSPECT CAPTURED IN PENN AVE.

Caught attempting to enter the home of Samuel D. Alsereafer, 2705 Penn avenue, early today, police say, Louis Allen, 23, a Negro, of 813 Twenty-seventh street, was arrested. He was found in a yard in the rear of the home after he had forced a window, the arresting officers say.

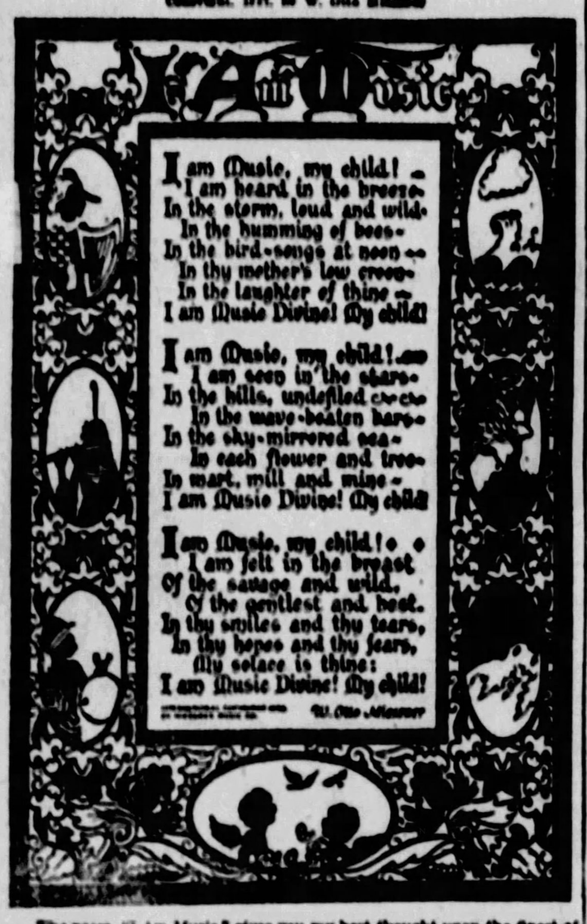
THE SUN-TELEGRAPH MELODY WAY CLUB

TWELFTH LESSON

Copyrighted, 1927, by W. Otto Miessner



I am Music, my child!
I am heard in the breeze
In the storm, loud and wild
In the humming of bees
In the bird-songs at noon
In thy mother's low croon
In the laughter of thine
I am Music Divine! My child!
I am Music, my child!
I am seen in the stars
In the hills, undefiled
In the wave-beaten bars
In the sky-mirrored sea
In each flower and tree
In mart, mill and mine
I am Music Divine! My child!
I am Music, my child!
I am felt in the breast
Of the savage and wild,
Of the gentlest and best.
In thy smiles and thy tears,
In thy hopes and thy fears,
My solace is thine:
I am Music Divine! My child!

The poem, "I Am Music," gives you my best thought upon the finest of all the Arts. I hope it will help you to see more in Music than, possibly, you have thought of, heretofore.

Truly, Music is in everything. Its Rhythm, the life of Music, is also the life of all Nature. The motion of Music is also the motion of all the stars and planets. Its ebb and flow are also the ebb and flow of the sea.

Its Melody is also the song of birds, the sighing of the winds, the murmur of the brook, the roar of the water-fall, the mighty thunder crash!

Its Harmony is also the harmony of the heavens, the blue of the sky, the crimson and gold of the sunset, the glory of the rainbow. It is in the green of the fields, in the myriad shades and colors of the flowers, in the gleaming yellow desert, in the purple haze of mountains.

Its Form is also in the hills and valleys, in the symmetry of trees, in the order of the leaves and petals, in every blade of grass and in every humble weed.

Its Mood is also in the brilliance of the sunlight, in the "cold light of stars," in the romance of the twilight, in the "rosy fingered" dawn. It is alike in the glowing summer's heat and the chilling winter's frost; in the gentle zephyr and the angry storm.

Music is in all things, but it becomes most divine in the human breast. No savage is so wild but is moved by Music. No man has stooped so low but that Music may lift him up again. No heart has ever found a grief that Music could not soothe.

As a babe, the first sound to reach your ears was the music of your mother's voice. As a child, you lisped in nursery rhymes. You skipped and you danced to show your heart's delight. You sang and you whistled in the very joy of Life. Many of your playthings were musical toys. Many of your games were played with Music taking part. Always it has been Music's place to bring you happiness. And, if you have grown older, Music still has charms to please.

And now, may I hope that you have become interested to be more intimately acquainted with Music? You have almost reached the end of this little musical journey. Your term of Melody Way lessons has nearly run its course. How much have you learned? What have you accomplished? Can you play every piece, in every key? Do you know the names, terms and signs that make Music intelligible?

No good teacher would complete his course without being anxious about the progress of his pupils. A fitting close, then, it would seem, would be a brief review of the journey we have taken. Pleasant memories, I trust, will return as we travel over the road once again.

Music, we have said, is a language. Some have vaguely called it the speech of angels, the expression of the soul. But I would also have you think of Music as a language of ideas and of thoughts, expressed in sounds as intelligible as in speech and in patterns as traceable as in any art design.

I have tried to make this clear to you by separating Music into its elements. You have seen that what we call Music is made up of rhythmic pulsations, melodic patterns and harmonic designs. We have studied these separately, have named them, memorized and mastered them. You should now know them when you hear them and when you see them.

You should feel each rhythm and be able to express it. You should recognize each bit of melody when you hear it and be able to sing or play it. You should be able to distinguish between the familiar harmonies you hear and see and play as well as write them.

The printed page accompanying this lesson should prove to you whether or not you can recognize a Melody at sight. Twelve of your familiar pieces are represented on this page, the first phrase only of each Melody. In order to test you thoroughly, each piece is written in a different key from the original.

Your first test should be to name each piece by merely studying its notation without playing it at the piano.

The second test is for you to name the key of each piece as the first phrase is now written.

The third test is for you to name the letter names of the major scale in the key in which each Melody is written.

The fourth test is to play from memory the chords used to accompany each Melody in the key in which it is written.

The fifth test is to write out these chords from memory. If this seems too difficult, then you may refer to the table of Complete Cadence Chords, which are a part of this review.

For the remainder of this period let us make a list of the ideas we have gained. There are hundreds more in Music, but these are fundamental and you will meet them again and again in the new Music you will learn.

For your convenience I shall list the Rhythmic Motifs and Figures, the Melodic Motifs and Figures and the Harmonic Motifs as you have learned them in the pieces of the Melody Way. Your part will be to identify them and to associate or connect them with the Melodies in which they occur.

Play the above Melodic Motifs and Harmonic Motifs in all keys, with each hand separately.

Complete Cadence Chords

Below you will find the complete cadence chords in all 12 keys. The first six of these were introduced to you in the seventh lesson. For convenient reference, the keys are grouped in the order of their sharps and flats.

For daily practice, I should suggest this order:

Monday—F and C.
Tuesday—D and E.
Wednesday—G and A
Thursday—D flat and E flat.
Friday—G flat and A flat.
Saturday—B flat and B.

Transpositions

You should also practice your transpositions according to some such system. Play in two different keys each day and you will cover them all each week.

Test Questions

Select 50 test questions from the preceding lessons and try to answer them without referring to the printed answers. Then check your answers with the printed answers. Give yourself two points for each question answered correctly. The sum of these points will be your final grade for this term of lessons.

And now, as we close, let me hope that you will go on with your studies, for you have only just begun your adventures on the joyous Road to Music. The farther you travel into this Wonder Land, the more beautiful you will find its Melodies and Harmonies, the more challenging its Rhythms.

So far, I trust, I have guided you safely and well. Now you must seek other guides. Try to find a teacher who will build upon your foundation a Temple of Music that will ever delight you—one that will grow more and more beautiful as you help to build it.

My task, for the present, is done. It has been a pleasure to serve you and I am sincerely sorry to leave you. All my good wishes and my continued interest go out to you. And, believe me always a true and loyal friend to the members of the Melody Way Club.

Charles Farrell May Get Role of Frantz Schubert in Screen Production of "Blossom Time"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26.

WINFIELD SHEEHAN believes he has picked another winner. At least, he feels it ought to be a winner in the class of some of the Fox Company's best efforts. He has completed arrangements with the Shuberts, giving him the screen privileges of "Blossom Time."

I hardly think it is necessary to explain that "Blossom Time," supposedly based on the life of Frantz Schubert, is one of the most tuneful light operas ever written. It really is a light opera, rather than a musical comedy.

The purchase was made with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in mind. They will be directed by Frank Borzage, who understands their youthful temperament so well that he made them both famous in "Seventh Heaven."

"Blossom Time," with so many melodies from Frantz Schubert, should make a good movie. If it doesn't, there will be more people disappointed than the Fox Company. Dorothy Donnelly wrote the words of "Blossom Time," which has been one of the musical plays seen by many, many theater-goers over the country.

Gloria Swanson gets "Sunny." She is returning to California with Joseph Schenck's promise that she may make "Sunny" after she finishes "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney." Constance Talmadge was supposed to have starred in "Sunny," with David Wark Griffith directing. But Mr. Griffith was never sold on the idea of this musical comedy as a picture and when he expressed his wish to be relieved from directing it that automatically eliminated Connie, who was to have been starred in a Griffith production of "Sunny." It seems unlikely Gloria will make "Sunny" until some time next year. She will take several months to complete "Mrs. Cheyney."

A number of our foreign players are planning to eat Christmas dinner at the home fireside. Lars Hansen, with his wife, sails for Sweden December 7 to spend the Yuletide there. He is not returning for three months—a nice little vacation and one that he has earned, considering the number of films in which he has appeared this last year. His wife was formerly a well-known stage beauty of Sweden, and at one time was Victor Seastrom's leading woman.

The H. B. Warners know what it means to lose a million dollars. Last week a London solicitor wrote and stated that a certain elderly woman in London had bequeathed Grace Warner, a sister of H. B., her entire fortune of more than $1,000,000. Grace Warner, who had been an actress, died two years ago without even knowing that she was mentioned in this strange will. Ever since the war, when so many of her relatives were killed, the wealthy woman had been a recluse, and she had not been told of Grace Warner's death. When the Warners told of the legal communication we all sat around the fireplace at the home of Joseph and Elise Schildkraut and tried to figure out how the million could revert to the Hollywood Warners, but it seems the English laws are strict and the estate will now be turned over to the government. Doesn't seem right, does it?

Engagements in Hollywood need not be taken too seriously. In fact, an engagement need never be considered important until a marriage actually takes place. Buster Collier had all the newspaper reporters camping on his trail for his approaching marriage to Dorothy McCarthy. It is my personal and private opinion that Buster and Constance Talmadge had had a quarrel, therefore the rush to the license clerk. Maybe I'm wrong, but Connie and her mother get here next week and then we shall see. They are leaving Sunday to spend Christmas with the Keaton children. I am confident Buster is as devoted as ever. I never expected Richard Barthelmess would marry Katherine Wilson, for he has repeatedly said he would never marry a woman who wasn't willing to give up her stage career. That's what was at the bottom of his trouble with Mary Hay.

I couldn't help but think how much the two Day girls look alike—Marceline and Alice. Perhaps, because both of them are appearing in mystery plays in roles so very similar. Alice, who graduated from the Sennett school, is in "The Gorilla," and Marceline, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player, in "London After Midnight."

A Couple of Champs -:- -:- Fifty Years on the Stage

ONE, of course, you recognize but the other may puzzle you, so we will tell you the taller one is Fidel LaBarba, former lightweight champion, who deserted the ring to become a college stude. He trained Mickey (Himself) McGuire for the picture, "Mickey's Battle."

Fifty years ago, plus a few weeks, Otis Skinner first appeared on the stage in Philadelphia as a Negro character in "Woodleigh." With Mr. Skinner on the anniversary was Dr. Furness, noted Shakespearean scholar.

Sousa to Give Schoool Bands Lessons

When John Phillip Sousa arrives in Pittsburgh Monday morning, the bands from Schenley, Langley, Allegheny and Westinghouse High Schools, numbering more than 125 players, will be at the station to greet him. After playing his most famous composition, "Stars and Stripes Forever," they will escort him to his hotel. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday Lieutenant Commander Sousa will attend each school, instruct the bands, rehearse them in new music and in general act as musical advisor. Will Earhart, director of music for the Board of Education, cooperating.

APOLLO MALE CHORUS TO GIVE CONCERT SOON

The Pittsburgh Apollo Male Chorus will give a concert, under the direction of Harvey B. Gaul, in Carnegie Music Hall, Friday evening, December 2. It will be assisted by Lyda Neebson, dramatic soprano, who has recently finished a successful tour of Europe.

MACKAILL-MULHALL ARE IN "LADY BE GOOD"

Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall will shortly be presented in "Lady Be Good," from the famous musical stage show. Nathan Perry is adapting the vehicle.

NEW STARRING PICTURE FOR BILLIE DOVE CHOSEN

Carey Wilson is to produce "The Heart of a Follies Girl," starring Billie Dove. He also wrote the adaptation of the story which is by Adele Rogers St. John.

PLANE OF LINDBERGH DUPLICATED IN FILM

A duplicate of the Lindbergh plane has been acquired for use in the current George Sidney-Charlie Murray comedy, which Mervyn LeRoy is directing.

"MERRY WIVES" IN BILLS

The attraction in the Nixon next week will be a revival of Shakespeare's gay comedy, "The Merry Wives of Windsor," with Mrs. Fiske, Otis Skinner and Henrietta Crosman playing the leading roles. The stage sets, showing views in and about the old town of Windsor, have been painted by Gates and Morange. Harrison Grey Fiske made the arrangement of the play.

George White's "Scandals," which remain in the Alvin for one more week, beginning Monday, will play a matinee today.

If the skating act that opens "The Spider" in the Pitt, looks simple from the orchestra pit, it might be well to drop in some morning about 11 o'clock and watch "Mack and LaRue, the Skating Marvels," going through practice work.

The Keith-Albee vaudeville program in the Davis next week includes Mary Marlowe, W. H. Goobe and Adonis, Jack Norworth and company, Louis Mosconi, Burns and Burchell, Mullen and Frances and Mosconi Brothers, dancers. Featured on the screen will be "Paid to Love," with George O'Brien and Virginia Valli.

'King's Henchman' To Be Sung Dec. 13

"The King's Henchman" comes to Syria Mosque Tuesday evening, December 13, under the management of May Beegle. Perhaps the gradual decline of antagonism which has existed toward what is musically American, is in some measure responsible for the enthusiastic acceptance of this Taylor-Millay opera. "The King's Henchman" is the twelfth American opera to be performed in the Metropolitan Opera House, others with the exception of a few being given not more than one or two hearings and were then shelved.

Deems Taylor composed the music of "The King's Henchman" and Edna St. Vincent Millay did the libretto. The cast includes Frances Peralta, Marie Sundelius, Ora Hyde, Rafaelo Diaz, Giovanni Martino, Henri Scott, John Roberts, Thomas George, Richard Hale, Dudley Marwick, Alfredo Valenti, Constance Hejda.

Mack Sennett Gets Title For New Comedy

At last Mack Sennett has a title for his big romantic-war feature. The film, which was made with the working title, "The Romance of a Bathing Girl," will be released as "The Goodby Kiss." Sennett tried for weeks to find a suitable title for the production, which he personally directed and asked fans throughout the country to submit suggestions. "The Goodby Kiss" was one of the thousands of titles received by the producer. It is the "brain child" of Jimmy Starr, Los Angeles newspaper man.

"The Goodby Kiss" features Johnny Burke, Sally Eilers, Matty Kemp, Alma Bennett, Carmelita Geraghty, Lionel Belmore and Wheeler Oakman.

REV. SHELTON TO SPEAK ON OLD AGE

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton will give the result of his observations, made last summer, of the old age and unemployment pension system of Great Britain at services in the Second Presbyterian Church, tomorrow night. Dr. Shelton's text will be "What Shall We Do With the Old Man?" He will answer such questions as, "Why Grow Old?" and "When Is One Old?" At the morning service his subject will be "Forget It."

The subject of the Rev. Dr. W. L. McEwan's sermon in the Third Presbyterian Church at 11 a. m. tomorrow will be, "Not Fit for the Kingdom." The eighth sermon in the series on "Some Fundamental Bible Questions," will be delivered by Dr. McEwan at the evening service. His subject will be "Where Are the Dead?"

"The Romance of Christ in America" will be the subject of the Rev. C. Carson Bransby at services tomorrow morning in the Homewood Presbyterian Church. An illustrated sermon on "The Prodigal Son," will be given in the evening. This service will be preceded by an organ recital.

At the Shady Avenue Presbyterian Church, corner Shady avenue and Aurelia street, tomorrow morning, the Rev. Dr. David Lang, pastor, will preach on "Glad Tidings." An illustrated lecture will be given in the evening at 7:45 o'clock.

The text of the Rev. Dr. W. F. Stivens, pastor of the Manchester Presbyterian Church, tomorrow morning, will be "The Right Angled Triangle of Life." In the evening his subject will be "Self, Versus Self."

The annual sermon to the Ulster Society and Ladies' Auxiliary Society will be preached by the Rev. Dr. E. M. McFadden, past president of the Ulster Society, tomorrow night, at the Ninth United Presbyterian Church, Fourteenth and Bingham streets, South Side.

The Rev. J. K. Stewart, of Los Angeles, Cal., a former pastor of the Herron Hill United Presbyterian Church, will occupy the pulpit of that church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

The annual Thanksgiving service in Epiphany Roman Catholic Church, Washington place, will be celebrated tomorrow morning with a solemn high mass at 11 o'clock. The Rev. Law A. O'Connell will preach a special Thanksgiving sermon. A special program of music will be rendered by the combined junior and senior choirs.

The Rev. Norman C. Milliren, pastor of the First Evangelical Church, will speak on "The Making of a Pearl," at services tomorrow morning. "The Healing Touch," will be the theme of his sermon tomorrow night.

"Life and the Golden Rule," will be the theme of the Rev. Dr. C. W. Tinsley's sermon tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in the West View Methodist Episcopal Church.

Beginning tomorrow evening, the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers will discuss for four Sunday evenings in the East End Christian Church the book of Bruce Barton, "What Can a Man Believe?" His theme will be "Should Religion Be Abolished?" Dr. Ewers' morning subject will be "The Gospel of Work."

"Big Temptations" will be the subject of a special sermon to the young people by the Rev. Dr. Percival H. Barker tomorrow night in the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church. Dr. Baker will speak on "The Peacemakers" at the morning service.

Uniforms, More Uniforms For Fawcett

Life for George Fawcett, the veteran actor, is just one uniform after another these days. He is playing in two pictures at once, "The Cossack," at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and "The Tempter," with John Barrymore. In each he wears a Russian uniform. Some of these actors have more jobs than they can accept and others wait at home for the telephone to ring. Carrie Daumery is another player who steps from one picture into another. Royalty seems to be her specialty. She no more than finished "The Man Who Laughs," playing a princess, than she was cast as another princess in "The Tempter."

FIVE-FOOT FALL KILLS WORKER

Charles H. Datt, 35, of the contractors' firm of Nicholl & Datt, 3[illegible] Butler street, was killed in a five-foot fall from a wall to the cement sidewalk at 127 Lambert street today.

Datt, who was working on the wall, lost his balance. His skull was fractured. He lived in Gibsonia.

Alborada del Gracioso ..... Ravel
Les jeux d'eau a la villa d'Este ..... Liszt

Paul Doguereau, French pianist and first prize winner at the Paris Conservatory, played again in Carnegie Music Hall last night. His program as always was original, ending with three stunning compositions of the modern school—in this case Liszt may easily be classed with Faure and Ravel.

Unfortunately some dealer is guilty of sending this pianist an inferior instrument each time he plays for us; the boy never has had a real opportunity to show his best, for he is very clever with his pedal and he studies acoustics far more profoundly than most players. For that very reason his modern works, Debussy and Ravel, show great genius. With Chopin, Doguereau takes his rubato to such extremes, that he distorts the design. He sometimes runs away with tempo, at times drags his compositions beyond good taste as in the C sharp Minor Etude; in both cases it is disastrous for the player.

In spite of Doguereau's youth he plays with real poise and assurance. The audience was pleased and demanded more when he had finished his program.

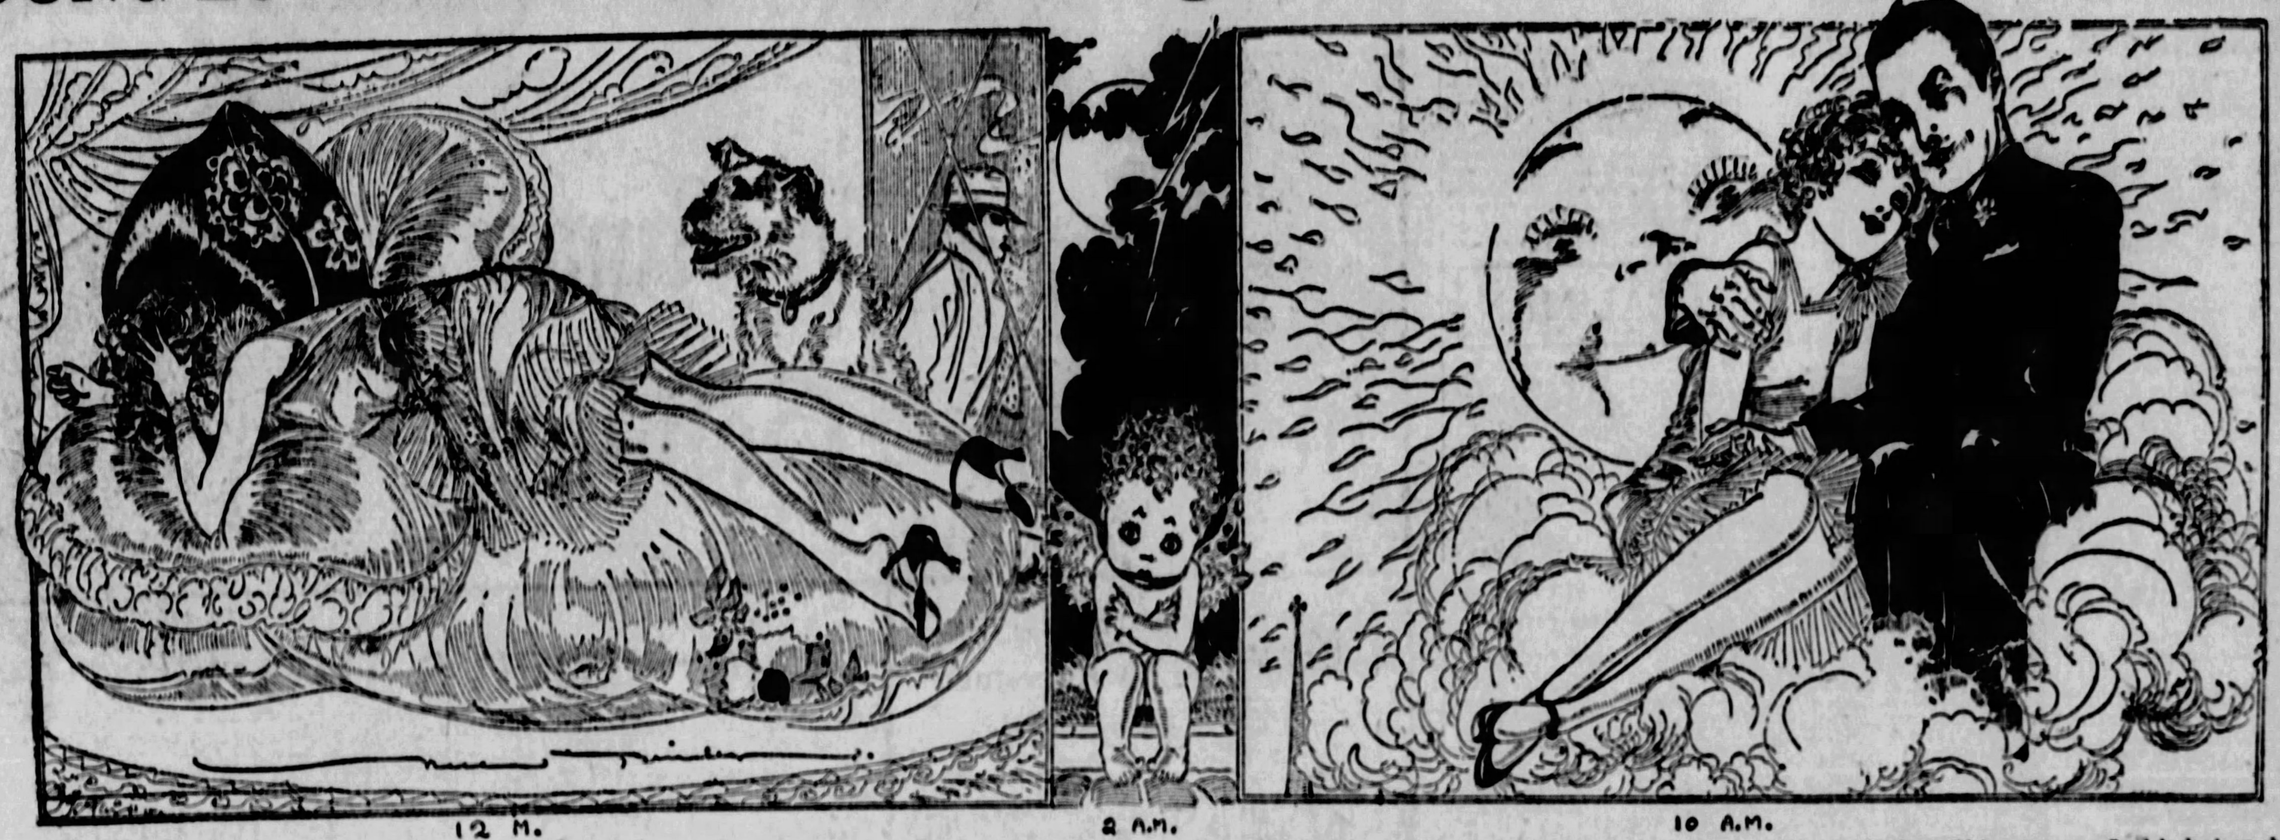
YOUNG LOVE IS APRIL—Mad at Midnight, Glad in the Morning!

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY



GROWN-UP people smile at the troubles of children. The ancient ones who are beginning to walk in a light "that is shining on them as they go" smile and wag their heads at the troubles of those kids, the middle-aged ones. And do the angels themselves laugh aloud at the sorrows of the old ones?

Anyhow—the whole great system, angels and all—reaps a harvest of chuckles from the troubles of those who are neither children nor grown-ups—the young ones: Youth.

And do you know why? It's their own fault—poor old kids. Because they stay in the glooms such a little while! They are out of the sunshine and into the shadow and back into the sunshine and then into the shadow as lightning-quick as the railroad train is as it flashes through a series of tunnels. Youth and its moods and sorrows is just like that. First a glimpse of dazzling blue sky, sunshine, and green leaves of a hedge. Then, the blackness of the River Styx, it pall broken by a gleam of an ominous blue spark a mile away and a threatening red one in the deep gloom like the eye of a dragon in its lair. Then sunshine again. Sunshine and rain. Laughter and tears. The tears of April and then her smiles. Night and high noon. Storm and peace. That's Youth. Youth is a gay young duck paddling in the pond, upon whose innocent feathers the sun shines yellow and FROM off whose feathers the raindrops slide without wetting him. In fact, the young duck likes the thundershower—even while he is afraid of the lightning. And he claps his wings at the whole pond because he is glad to be alive and a duck!

Youth is an April duck in the course of its love-stories, too. Monday a violent electric storm—with Cupid left out in it to drench his fragile wings—for neither Jimmy nor Jimmette will have him with THEM. They swear they want never to see his "double-face" again. And by Tuesday noon a dazzling sun, and Jimmy and Jimmette seated, the world forgot, upon puffy pink clouds up above the world so high!

Youth takes Love hard—but, oh—with such speed; coming or going! The older ones approach him slowly; handle him with deliberation; and get so much more hurt! And cherish him so much longer! Youth goes away with a mad at midnight; and comes back with a glad in the morning!

Would we could stay young always—just enough to easily forgive and forget!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

How the Homely Girl Wins

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"I WISH I were beautiful!"

It is safe to state that every girl not born a beauty has echoed this remark at some time. Since the days of the first recorded beauty contest in ancient Greece, physical loveliness has been held up as woman's greatest enchantment and source of power. But is it?

Were the best-loved, most irresistible women of history invariably beauties? Is physical beauty an open sesame to success and happy romance today?

Good looks in the sense of careful, dainty grooming, a wholesome appearance, the symmetry and poise that result in fine health, and taste in dress, are an asset to any woman. They make her easy to look at, easy to remember, easy to love.

But in our modern adulation of physical beauty, are we not inclined to attribute to it undue importance as part of a girl's equipment for success?

The great Queen Elizabeth was a plain, red-haired woman. Many able antiquarians dispute the beauty of Cleopatra, claiming she was not good-looking, even according to the standards of her day. But no one doubts her irresistible charm.

Helen of Troy was beautiful. But how much happiness or success did her beauty attract to her or her country? Her love invariably brought tragedy to herself and those dear to her.

Among artists, Sarah Bernhardt was not beautiful. Duse had only the loveliness of a beautiful spirit. Ninon de Lenclos, who it is said was the only woman in Paris during the reign of Louis XIV who had no enemies, was not rated a great beauty. Yet in her ninetieth year she was charming enough to have a duel fought over her and her love.

Think of the women who know who are supremely successful, supremely charming and loved. Are all of them beautiful?

I am sure that if you recall those women of your own acquaintance who are most happily married, most loved by husband, children and a great circle of friends, you will note that extreme personal beauty is not their leading characteristic.

"Just a little mouse of a woman!" is the description I heard of the wife of a great financial wizard. Yet none doubts that her love has been the inspiration, her care the salvation of her famous husband. She is the power behind the throne.

"A homely woman with charm is more beautiful than a beautiful woman without it," writes Thomas L. Masson.

The fact is, when we love a woman we forget whether she is beautiful or plain—and we don't care. Beauty counts for a favorable first impression—that's all.

It is said that the following limerick was a favorite with President Wilson:

"As a beauty I'm not a great star,
There are others more handsome by far.
But my face, I don't mind it.
Because I'm behind it,
It's the people in front that I jar."

It's just the jolly, human attitude expressed by this limerick that often helps a homely girl to win success in business and romance, causing her to distance her complacent, beautiful rival.

Nine times out of ten, a beautiful girl has grown used to thinking of herself as a picture, and she always tries to keep in the picture—in other words, she is self-conscious and self-satisfied. She is a bore.

She may receive a great deal of surface attention from men because they are attracted by her loveliness and are possibly proud to be seen with such a good looking woman.

But when it comes to lasting friendship, love and marriage, a man turns to the girl who is natural and sympathetic, responsive and capable—a girl who may be quite plain, but can laugh at herself. That laugh counts for charm.

No matter how homely a girl may be to begin with she can acquire wholesome good looks with the aid of modern knowledge of how to care for the health and the body, and scientific study of smart and artistic dress. The homely girl can be chic, and that means she is pleasant and interesting to look at.

Acquired good looks are more of an asset than being born beautiful, just as it is better for a young man to have to earn his money than to inherit a huge fortune.

Forget your beauty if you are beautiful. Forget to envy the loveliness of others if you are plain. Character and charm will enable you to make a real, lasting success, and to enchant the right man throughout a life-time of happy marriage.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

ONE HUSBAND OR ANOTHER?

THERE is probably no married woman living who has not at some time subconsciously wished that there were a "Wives' Exchange" where slightly used husbands could be turned in and traded off for a different model—or what have you?

No matter what kind of car or what kind of husband you have, you can always imagine that you might have been better off with some other kind.

Solomon married seven hundred times, remember—and no doubt even then he thought that he MIGHT have found a perfect wife if he had only "had another chance."

HELEN ROWLAND

The wife of a tightwad feels that she would cheerfully exchange him for a nice, generous-hearted burglar, or a liberal, extravagant bootlegger.

The wife of the rounder or the playboy no doubt thinks that she would joyfully trade him off for a sober, steady old grouch who would come home regularly every evening, go to sleep after dinner, and pay the bills on the dot.

The wife of a hero secretly believes that she would be almost willing to part with her steady income and her peace of mind in return for an exciting existence with a heart-breaker or a jazz-boy who would at least put a little color in her life and take her out of the deadly monotony.

And the wife of a "stepper" and a woman-charmer feels sure that she could be far happier with a husband who beat her, choked her or starved her than with one who constantly cheats and deceives her, keeps her soul on the wrack and holds her up to ridicule.

That's human nature. "The ills we know not of" always seem more endurable than those that face us across the breakfast-table every morning.

That is because we choose a man for his charms and virtues instead of for his faults. Yet the average human being has ten or twenty little faults to one big virtue—and we've got to LIVE with ALL of them.

If only we could choose our life-mates for their faults and weaknesses and failings, there would be far less travel to Paris and Reno!

If you can love a man BECAUSE he is lazy and careless and easy-going, or because he has an iron will, a flourishing vanity, or a splendid egotism; or because he throws away his money or hoards the pennies, or is strong and silent, or frivolous and flirty, you could of course easily love him for his virtues.

And then you'd be loving ALL of him! And to live happily in the close communion of matrimony with any more human being, you've GOT to love all of him! For it isn't the quality and quantity of their virtues that make for happy companionship between a man and a woman, but the quality and quantity of their LOVE!

Tracing Ill Health to Primary Causes

THERE are able physicians who devote themselves to the children. They are seeking the causes of unremunerative ment and failure to develop.

DR. COPELAND

From time to time reports are made as to the results of their research. One such study was given to public only recently. This was a report on the condition of 600 children in one institution. These youngsters varied in age from two years to 15. Regardless of the age grouping, there was found an average of six physical defects per child.

The chief defect of young children is obstruction of the nose and throat. Adenoids and enlarged tonsils produce serious interference with breathing. Mouth breathing is the natural consequence, and deformities of the face follow.

The tonsil and adenoid tissue interferes with the drainage and ventilation of the ears. This is a frequent cause for deafness.

Teeth defects are all too common in young children. They prepare the way for infection and pus formation.

Intestinal worms are a frequent cause for undernourishment. No matter how good the appetite and how much food is taken, the child does not prosper if worms are present.

The skin of the young child should be clear and free from pimples and unhealthy spots. You may be surprised to learn that skin eruptions, bronchitis and asthma may come from the same cause. Food poisoning may be at the bottom of one and all. Some particular article in the diet may produce one of these symptoms.

A good many times it is difficult to determine just what food is responsible for the trouble. There are well worked out skin tests which are used to find the food which is disturbing the health of the child.

If a child is under-nourished the muscles are soft and flabby. In consequence the youngster is tired all the time. This fact is shown by the bad posture. The shoulders are round, the abdomen prominent, the chest flat, the chin is on the chest, and in every possible way it is evident that the child has not energy enough to stand up straight.

The correct position is all important. Without it the abdominal organs lack support and indigestion follows. Lowered resistance and lack of vitality are certain to result.

I speak of these various defects to put the parent on guard. It is not alone the job of the doctor to find these imperfections. Their presence or the presence of any one of them should cause the parent to march the child to the doctor for advice.

Early attention will prevent the serious consequences which are sure to come if the defects are overlooked or disregarded. It is a case of a "stitch in time."

Answers to Health Queries

R. E. D. Q.—What will correct high blood pressure?

2.—How can I reduce?

3.—What do you advise for a person that is hard of hearing caused by a catarrhal condition of the ear?

A.—The diet should be corrected. Eat only simple food. Omit tea and coffee. For further information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat question.

2.—Weight reduction is merely a matter of self-control as regards the diet. A certain amount of exercise is essential. For details send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

3.—The catarrhal condition must be corrected, and this requires special treatment. For details send self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

H. H. Q.—What causes the hands and feet to be continually wet with perspiration?

A.—Usually due to a nervous condition; improve the health in general and the symptoms will probably disappear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

The Habit of Courage

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

HENRY and his little brother, Boswell, were delivering hand bills. Up one side of the street and down the other they went ringing doorbells and leaving the circulars as they had been instructed to do. Henry darted into one house while Boswell ran into the next door, and so they made quick work of their bill throwing.

Then all of a sudden Henry heard the ugly growl of a dog mingled with a shriek from his younger brother. Looking in the direction from which the terrifying sounds came the boy saw a huge dog almost upon Boswell. Before he could move, the dog leaped at the child, but Boswell dodged the attack. Then without a moment's hesitation Henry picked up a stick and ran shouting toward the ferocious animal.

As often happens, the dog recognized the fearlessness of a superior being and slunk away beneath the house. The boy's superb courage had saved his little brother from a horrible experience.

Now Henry has not always been a brave and bold lad. He can remember when he was afraid of many things—dogs in particular. He still shrinks from encounters with danger. That is human nature. But in an emergency he can be trusted to rise to the occasion and meet danger unafraid.

Three years ago Henry joined the Boy Scouts; and as every scout knows service and courage are keynotes of scoutdom. Those boys are trained in courage. They are inspired by tales of brave deeds and they are taught how to meet emergencies. Henry, being a most enthusiastic scout, read the books and practiced the teachings week after week for a long, long time. In that way he got the lessons firmly planted in his consciousness. He gradually acquired the habit of courage through performing many small deeds of bravery. Then the big test came and he met it like a man.

Authorities on the subject agree that people are not born brave or cowardly. They are made brave or cowardly by training, by everyday influences, by environment.

When the habit of courage is firmly fixed in the nature of a boy, a girl, a man or woman, then that person can be depended upon to act without fear or cowardice in any situation.

It is persistent drill; patient teaching, wise counsel and good example that enables your son to throw off the shackles of fear. For as surely as habit controls other actions, habit controls the trait called "courage."

Sometimes it is companions who furnish training in physical courage. Sometimes it is the conditions which a cold world imposes upon harmless children. There are undoubtedly many fearless people who have never had any home training. But they got it in the hard school of experience. No one wants his own children subjected to unnecessary hardships. But every parent wants his children—especially his sons—to be brave.

Those who are unable to cultivate in their young ones the habit of courage may be able to find some organization that will help in that direction. It is certainly worth trying.

Sharkskin Favored

The smartness of utility purses are of sharkskin. All sizes and shapes are shown in two varieties—one with a filed and flat, the other with a rough and pebbly surface. As sharkskin readily absorbs colors, it can be had in the most subtle shades to match practically any costume. Belts, vanity and cigarette cases, lighters and other accessories are made to match the purses.

COVER YOUR ANKLES doesn't mean hide your feet, as the latest shoe innovation so patently shows. Wear them below, with flippy flaps that just show the ankle. Or wear it down in front, up in back. Don't let the weather scare you. Wear 'em like boots if you're freezing. When you dress up your feet for the theatre remember the vogue for contrasting leathers.

Cinderella Ball Highly Successful

CONTRARY to what one might be led to expect, the Cinderella ball held last night in the University Club by the dispensary board of St. Margaret's Memorial Hospital, did not end at the stroke of midnight, and from all appearances none of the guests seemed to think that the appropriate hour to leave the festivities. Confidentially, there was little of the "Cinderella-ish" about the dance, but that didn't prevent it from being a highly successful and entertaining affair.

The fashion revue proved to be the high light of the evening, with the latest modes displayed by Mrs. Charles L. Snowdon, Jr., Mrs. Alan S. Humphreys, Mrs. Harvey Childs III, Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, Mrs. Shirley P. Austin, Mrs. J. Knowles Woodwell, Mrs. Sidney A. Stewart, Mrs. William W. Blair, Jr., Helen Leovy, Marie Kimball, Alice Childs, Evelyn Evans, Margaret McClintock, Josephine Nicola and Martha S. Chalfant. Another feature was the lucky-number dance.

As you know, Mrs. Donald Scott Rodgers was in general charge of the dance, and she wore a handsome frock of white crepe embroidered with gold. Marjorie Gethoefer, who is president of the board, wore rose crepe touched with rose velvet.

Two or three dinners were given before the ball. Mrs. Frederick T. Billings, of Wallingford street, entertained in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for Jane Foster, debutante daughter of Mrs. Charles Addison Foster, of San Francisco. There were about 45 guests, and, of course, they all went later to the dance. Jane, you know, is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Childs III and Mr. and Mrs. Blair Childs.

Another dinner was given by the J. Scott Burkes in their home in Kentucky avenue.

An out-of-town debutante party that is interesting to Pittsburghers is the dance to be given tonight in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York, by the Harry Darlingtons, of Irwin avenue, and the Robert Livingston Clarksons, of New York, to introduce Mrs. Darlington's sister, Anita Lewis Shields, of Philadelphia. Anita has visited her sister here frequently, and has made many friends in Pittsburgh.

The Darlingtons are planning to remain at the Ritz-Carlton over the week-end.

That popular debutante, Mary Louise Johnson, was guest of honor again today at a luncheon, this one given by Mrs. M. L. Benedum in "Greystone," her Fifth avenue home. About 24 girls were entertained, and after the luncheon Mrs. Benedum took her guests to the Nixon matinee.

Another debutante party is scheduled for tonight, when the William Morris Pureys of Wilkins avenue will give a dinner-dance in the Longue Vue Country Club for Marjorie Babcock, a bud who is also receiving a lot of attention in her first season. There will be about 40 guests.

For its forty-sixth performance Monday night in Carnegie Music Hall, the Stage and Play Society is to give, you recall, three one-act plays, and the casts have just been announced. Esther Ely is to have the only feminine role in "Action," written by Holland Hudson, and the men in the cast will be C. F. C. Arensburg, Henry Fisher, Oliver Evans, James Macfarlane, Carey Williams, Joseph M. Bethner, James Graham, Joseph Kelly and John C. Sherriff.

Women, only, make up the brief cast for "When the Whirlwind Blows," and those taking part are Mrs. Joseph Dilworth, Mrs. William S. Moorhead and Mrs. Bennett Oliver. For the third production, Louise Saunders' "Our Kind," the cast will consist of Mrs. Wilmer Marshall Jacoby, Rolman McClintock and Carroll Hamilton Pittsugh.

One of our own debutantes, Suzanne Trimble, daughter of the Harcourt Newell Trimbles of Beechwood boulevard, shared honors yesterday at a luncheon given in Philadelphia. Mrs. David Morrison Dempster of that city entertained for her daughter, Mary Wood Dempster, in the Bellevue-Stratford. Last night Suzanne and Mary were guests of honor at a dinner-dance given by Mrs. Edward Caldwallader at her home in Villa Nova, near Philadelphia. This morning the two girls left for New York to attend the Army-Navy game and will return tonight for another dinner-dance. Suzanne is going back to New York tomorrow to spend several days, and will return home next week.

At an attractive home wedding tonight at 8 o'clock, Eleanor Hamilton Wallace, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Cushing Wallace, of Pennsylvania avenue, North Side, will become the bride of Frank Gilman Allen, of Norwood, Mass., lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Allen, of Lynn, Mass. The ceremony will be performed by the bride's uncle, the Rev. Dr. H. S. Wallace, of Pittsburgh, before an embankment of palms, ferns and crotons intermingled with crysanthemums in the fall shades. The bride will wear real lace over cream satin, fashioned with a full court train of the lace over satin, and her headdress will be a Dutch cap of the lace. She will carry white orchids, gardenias and roses showered with lilies of the valley. There will be no attendants and only the families and a few friends will witness the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Allen will take an eastern motor trip and after January 1 will be at home in Norwood.

MISS VIRGINIA CLINGERMAN

Miss Virginia Clingerman's engagement to John Byerly, of Pittsburgh, has been announced by her mother, Mrs. Walter H. Clingerman, of Scottdale.

PITTSBURGH CHAPTER, D. A. R., ADOPTS CHILD

The Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, has adopted a child. After an appeal for Carr Creek Community Center at Dirk, Ky., had been made by Mrs. Walter Chess, the adoption was moved by Mrs. W. C. Anderson and within a few minutes the necessary funds were subscribed by individuals. Mrs. Chess is also taking contributions of toys and other gifts to be sent to the Center for Christmas, donations that are sadly needed in this mountain settlement where boys and girls are trained to be leaders of their people.

The meeting was held in the newly decorated supper room at the Hotel Schenley, the gay hangings, the Florentine mirrors and crystal chandeliers lighting up the soft cream and gray of the walls and woodwork and making an extremely pleasant meeting for the Daughters. The program, which was arranged by Victor Saudek, was one of high merit throughout, and was given by Cass Ward Whitney, baritone; Elford Caughey, harp; Charles Riley, violin, and George Curry, cello, with Oscar Helfenbein playing accompaniments of distinction for the violin and vocal solos. Mrs. Biddie Arthurs, the regent, was, of course, in the chair, and the usual informal tea rounded out the afternoon.

A Pickwick dinner party is the novel form which the December meeting of the Dickens Fellowship will take. It will be held Monday night, December 5, in the Fort Pitt Hotel and is to be marked by a diversified but appropriate program. Mrs. W. W. Anderson, who has returned recently from New York, will review the play, "Pickwick," which she saw while in the East, a reading of the Christmas at Dingley Dell will be made by Chester B. Story from the "Pickwick Papers" and Mrs. D. G. Fowler will contribute an original "new chapter" to the "Papers." Christmas music, including carols, will be given under the direction of Mrs. Nellie Risher Roberts and the dinner arrangements are to be looked after by Mrs. C. L. Wilson, social chairman.

Members of the Carnegie Woman's Club came to Pittsburgh yesterday and were entertained in the Congress of Clubs by Mrs. S. M. Black. Under Mrs. F. A. Mercer's leadership papers were given as follows: "The Pilgrim Fathers," prepared by Mrs. Harry Howell and read by Mrs. Fred Heathcote; "The First Thanksgiving," written by Miss Goldie Viele and read by Mrs. W. A. K. Clarke; short sketches of John Alden and Miles Standish, by Mrs. Percy D. Siverd and Mrs. A. D. Lowdermilk. The musical portion of the program consisted of soprano solos by Miss Anna Belle McCoy, accompanied by Miss Gertrude Elliott. The State Federation convention report was given by Mrs. William Wrenshall, the president.

Panthers Prepare For Coast Jaunt

IRISH, TROJANS READY FOR FRAY

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 26,

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

NOT only has Jock Sutherland demonstrated once again that he is one of the best football coaches in the U. S. A., but, as usual, he is also proving one of the most modest.

His Pitt team's clear title to the championship of the East, after a season in which it never tasted defeat, attests not only the strength of the eleven itself but also reflects the skill and generalship of its great coach, but Dr. Sutherland refuses absolutely to let himself be placed in the spotlight. Instead, he insists that all the credit be given to the players.

JOCK is happy in his quiet way after the Panthers' brilliant regular season and their overwhelming defeat of Penn State Thursday, but he modestly declares that his own part in the achievement was only a minor one and that all the glory belonged to the team.

"They are the gamest bunch of boys and the hardest-trying lot I ever coached," he said. "All the credit ought to go to these lads, the cleanest crowd of football players I ever saw, and the best fighters."

That is the spirit that always has been characteristic of Coach Sutherland. He's never a limelighter, but he's a whale of a coach, and by this time the remainder of the country is thoroughly convinced of it.

PENN STATE will suffer fewer losses than Pitt by graduation before the arrival of the 1928 football season.

Only four of the 11 players who started in Thursday's game for the Blue and Gold, and only nine of the entire number of gridders used by Coach Bezdek during the afternoon will be missing when next fall arrives. Those lost will be John Lupke, halfback; John Pincura, quarterback; John Mahoney, center; Albert Leske, end; John Lungren, quarterback; Kenneth Stamp, end; Harold Dangerfield, halfback; Earl Hewitt, quarterback; Sudder Dorsey, guard; Harold Hastings, guard; Bernard Harrington, halfback; Alfred Wilson, end; John Neidel, tackle, and Richard McCombs, tackle.

PITT will lose seven of the 11 men seen who started in Thursday's game. They are Gibby Welch, halfback Jimmy Hagan, halfback; Dick Hoot, fullback; Andy Cutler, center; Bill Kern, tackle; Chester Wasmuth, tackle; and John Roberts, guard. Of the other Pitt players who broke into Thursday's affray at various stages, Andy Salata, tackle; Paul Fisher, quarterback, and Felix Bonerino, end, also will be lost.

It follows that of all the Pitt players who appeared in Thursday's contest, only Joe Donchess and Andy Guarna, ends; Alex Fox, guard, and Charley Edwards, quarterback, will be back next year. Needless to say Coach Sutherland will have a considerable gap to fill.

In addition to the outgoing players named above, Pitt will also lose Dwight Pyeck, halfback; Walter Nolan, halfback; Philip Sargeant, end; Ed Seifert, tackle, and Chester Doverspike, guard.

HAD Johnny Roepke, Penn State's captain and star halfback, never played in Pittsburgh before, his reputation following Thursday's game would have been low indeed. But local fans know that Johnny is far better than he showed Thursday. They recall his splendid exhibition in 1925, which proved his class beyond doubt.

In this year's game, however, he suffered the fate of many earlier State stars—he looked like the easiest player imaginable to stop, as he appeared to drop the instant a Panther hand touched him.

Of course, the vigor of the Pitt tackling had something to do with this, but Roepke showed none of the drive and power in running that had been expected, while his passing was erratic in the extreme. Only in punting did he live up to earlier performances. Otherwise, the malign fate that pursues Penn State stars in Pittsburgh crushed his efforts.

TO POINT to one bright spot in the midst of gloomy State remembrances, it might be said that the Nittany tackles stood out gallantly in the debacle of the Thanksgiving Day visitors. Pannaccion and Greenshields, in the face of an overpowering superiority, fought valiantly, and at times showed that, with adequate

NOTRE DAME FAVORED OVER COAST STARS

By WARREN BROWN,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Southern California, football ambassadors from the Pacific Coast, await the chance to present their credentials today at Soldier Field, for the scrutiny of Knute Rockne's Ramblers of Notre Dame.

The ceremonial, more important in some ways than the meeting of Army and Navy, in the same setting, a year ago, will be witnessed by a crowd of at least 110,000, thus equaling the football attendance for all time.

Southern California, perhaps the strongest team on the coast, in the present season, splendidly coached by Howard Jones, and possessing its share of individual stars, as well as a powerful machine, is actually engaging in more than a football game with Notre Dame.

It is pioneering, among the major teams of the coast, in coming into Mid-Western territory to play a football game, and the result of this sort of intersectional play will be watched with interest by the followers of football throughout the land.

Previous intersectional games between coast teams and those on this side of the Rockies, have been confined mostly to engagements in which the burden, if any, of lengthy travel, and radical climatic changes have been on the Coast's opponents. Southern California reverses that procedure, in today's game to play the return engagement of a home and home series with Rockne's Ramblers.

The advent of the Trojans today, involves another matter that is pertinent to the outcome of the ball game. It is the settlement of a friendly feud between coast teams, and those that Rockne puts together at Notre Dame.

Twice, in recent years, the Notre Dame teams have made the long jaunt to the coast, and twice they have returned victorious. Their first trip introduced the famous team that contained Messrs. Miller, Crowley, Layden and Stuhldreher, to "Pop" Warner's Stanford Cardinals, and "Pops" team ran second. A year ago, the Ramblers uncovered a tiny bit of humanity, answering to the name of Parisien, and his forward passing humbled Southern California.

Today, on the basis that a defeat for Notre Dame, in what amounts to Notre Dame's home lot, will go a long way towards evening up matters between Rockne's players and the dear old Pacific Coast Conference, the Trojans will not only be representing the good people of Los Angeles and its environs, but the entire sweep of the Pacific Coast, from Seattle to San Diego.

And inasmuch as Notre Dame, considerably traveled itself, in the course of a season, can be regarded as a representative team, not only of the middle west, but of the entire country east of the Rockies, the game today takes its place as the most important intersectional that has been staged in several seasons.

What manner of men are these men from the land of sunshine, fruit and flowers?

Is their football ability limited to the ground gaining activities of Morley Drury, the coast's contribution for all-America fame, and to the tackle play of Hibbs?

These two have gathered the bulk of the notices that have soared across the Rockies in the course of the sun-

THROUGH the SPORTLENS by HARVEY BOYLE

WITH the football season virtually over, the business of selecting All-America teams will begin. This business brings about a curious situation, whose humor is not to be missed. At first there goes up a general lament that picking an All-America team is futile work because no one is capable of doing it, and with that apology out of the way nearly everyone then begins to pick a team. Possibly, between the lines one gathers that it is a difficult task for all but the man whose selection you read. Obviously, the logical thing to do—and something that a lawyer called in on the case would advise—would be to say that it is futile to try to pick an All America eleven—and then start talking about something else. But this is seldom done. Everyone, usually, agrees that here is something that cannot be done and then goes ahead somewhat fatuously to try to do it. This state of critical mind on the part of the selectors may come from the football tradition in various schools, namely: "A team that won't be beat can't be beat." Perhaps the All-American selectors have decided that while it is impossible of achievement they are going to show the world that after all it can be done.

HARVEY BOYLE

And by the way, I never believed much in that slogan, inspiring as it is, "A team that won't be beat can't be beat." I assume the slogan means that a team which makes up its mind it will not be beaten will not be beaten. Probably half of the defeats suffered this year were suffered by teams which had the best intentions in the world, and great determination, before the games started. Unfortunately, there were other teams just as insistent and indications point to the game being played on mud-soaked field.

Each team seemed to emanate a quiet confidence, though neither betrayed any cocksureness, an attitude that betokens a spectacular and colorful exhibition this afternoon when the Carnegie horde and the famous Beaver crew of Behemoths strain with muscles tensed for the referee's whistle.

The Tartans, with a marred slate, are held to have fine chance for victory and the heavy condition of the field, if it should not dry up before the game, is declared to be an advantage for the Eastern eleven.

Oregon is said to be in poor shape, but it is no worse off than Carnegie. But in spite of the injuries to some of the regulars of both teams all of the first stringers will take their customary positions to start the game.

Neither Schissler or the Carnegie mentors have made any predictions, but both have let their charges and the public know that a hard struggle is anticipated.

Schissler, the Oregon coach, has a great kicker in Gilmore, and runner in Iarupino Maple. Maple is touted as all-America timber. The Tartans have been warned of Maple and his stunts on the football field.

The Skibos arrived in Portland early yesterday morning and indulged in a light workout in the stadium. Following the practice the coaches held blackboard drill and went over various plays of the Oregon eleven.

OLYMPIC COMMITTEE OUT AFTER $400,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(INS.)—By popular subscription in 200 American cities, the American Olympic Committee will seek to obtain $400,000 to defray the expenses of the American team to the ninth Olympic games in Amsterdam, Holland, next summer. Residents of every city with a population of 25,000 or more will be asked to contribute.

N. Y. U. AND MISSOURI BOOK THREE GAMES

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 26.—(UP.)—A three-game series between New York University and Missouri has been arranged tentatively, according to announcement made by Chester L. Brewer, Missouri athletic director. The arrangement calls for a game in Yankee Stadium, November 17, 1928; a return game here in 1929, and the third game in New York in

INVITATION ACCEPTED BY PITT FOLK

By JESS CARVER.

AN EXCHANGE of telegrams between the University of Pittsburgh and Leland Stanford University of Palo Alto, Cal., to put the clinching bolt in what will be the second grid meeting in history between Stanford and the Golden Panthers and insured Pitt's participation in the annual Tournament of Roses game in the Rose Bowl, Pasadena.

The bid, tendered annually to an eastern eleven, by the Tournament of Roses committee, has been practically assured the Panthers since they walloped the University of Nebraska here a couple weeks ago, but the formal dispatch was delayed until after the Penn State game Thursday, when Pitt sunk Hugo Bezdek's hopes of somewhat bracing a season nearly ruined by Buchnell in October. There really was little doubt at any time that Pitt would make the trip, especially when both Yale and Southern California refused to play, thus removing the possibility of a Jones vs. Jones coaching duel.

Pitt and the Cardinals will draw a huge gate. It will be a battle between master and pupil, though at present, the pupil ranks just about as close to the top as the master. As far as the development of detail in coaching is concerned, Dr. Sutherland, of Pitt, has an edge over the Old Fox, Pop Warner, of Stanford.

Pitt and Stanford battled back in 1916 and Pitt, playing its last game under the guiding hand of the Fox, defeated the Cards, then coached by Andy Kerr and at present located at Wash-Jeff. The 1916 game was the first coastal battle in which Pitt had ever taken part. This game will be the second.

Athletic officials at Pitt were as busy yesterday as an ice pick at a picnic. No details of when the Panthers will leave or how they will go or who will be taken have been worked out as yet, though present plans call for the team's taking the southern route, and stopping off for practice and for the purpose of becoming gradually acclimated at both San Antonio and Albuquerque, N. M.

PITT RECORD BEST.

Warner was here for the State game to get a line on Pitt and it is believed that he had the final say as to whether the Panthers were fit opponents for his Cardinals, who by the way, do not boast near as impressive a record as do the Panthers. The Cards were beaten by two minor elevens, Santa Clara and St. Mary's, and were tied by Southern California. However, California and Washington and Oregon fell before the Big Red and they are assured of a tie at least in the Coast Conference this season.

Since their overwhelming triumph over State and the defeat of New York U at the hands of Nebraska, Pitt has risen in the estimation and regard of football critics throughout the country until it is ranked as one of the three best. Yale, Pitt and Notre Dame possess the class this fall—and Pitt is considered more powerful than the Eli.

The athletic council met late yesterday and without a dissenting voice being heard, decided to accept the invitation and quickly dispatched a telegram to the Director of Athletics at Stanford and to the Tournament of Roses committee. A contract will be forwarded today and will arrive here early next week.

The Panthers came out of the State game in superb physical condition. There were the usual minor bumps

SPEAKING of SPORTS

HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

THE day before the Pitt-State game, I chanced upon Glenn Killinger, former Penn State backfield star, in the lobby of the William Penn Hotel, and he made the remark that State always showed at its worst at Forbes Field and in the Pitt Stadium and at its best at Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

"We'd like to get that Pitt team on Franklin Field," he observed. "We can lick our weight in wildcats there, but don't seem to be able to get going here."

The records bear out his statement that the Lions play their best brand of football on Penn's field, and they also show conclusively that they are much below par when they hit our man's town.

AFTER the 30-0 drubbing suffered by State here Thanksgiving Day, I recalled this bit of conversation with "Killie" for the edification of a Pitt man:

"They may be able to run riot against other teams at Franklin Field, but they wouldn't do it against us," this Pittite replied. "State never will run wild against Pitt teams anywhere. We have their goat, for one thing, and always get the jump on them, and, for another, State's system of line play is made to order for us. Until they change it, we'll always beat them."

Judging from what happened on the field Thursday this was a correct sum-up. State's high-standing line certainly looked bad against Pitt's charge, and, as a result, the Lion backfield never had a chance to get going. Roepke, a good back, was beaten before he started almost every time he carried the ball, and generally through no fault of his own.

THE Pitt team that rounded out a splendid season with the Turkey Day game and as a reward now has a trip to the coast for the Tournament of Roses battle with Stanford University staring it in the face unquestionably is the best Pitt team since the aggregation of 1916 coached by Pop Warner and of which Jock Sutherland, present Panther mentor, was a member, playing a guard position, and Coach Jock himself thinks this year's eleven has a little on the juggernaut that swept everything before it 11 years ago. He believes the team of this year played a slightly more difficult schedule. He has told his boys as much and is justly proud of them.

INCIDENTALLY, Pop and Jock got together after Thursday's game and buried the hatchet, ending a diplomatic breach that virtually has amounted to a "feud" between them dating back to the days when Jock's Lafayette team defeated Pop's Pitt team at Easton, Pa., shortly after the former pupil graduated into the coaching ranks. A misunderstanding

GAMES CARDED TONIGHT

Toronto vs. Pirates at Duquesne Garden (8:30).
New York Americans at Boston.
Ottawa at Montreal.
Detroit at Chicago.

By CARL W. SHATTO.

ODIE CLEGHORN'S plundered Pirates, in the cellar in the National Hockey League race and just about as far down in the graces of Pittsburgh fans, will attempt to strike up an acquaintance with the win column when they oppose the Toronto Maple Leafs on Duquesne Garden ice at 8:30 tonight.

Despite the fact that the Bucs are to present a revamped lineup, with Sammy Rothschild at the center post, their victory chances are none too bright. In accepting three straight defeats the Pirates have scored only one goal, while foemen rolled up the imposing total of 13. It is not likely that Sammy, recently purchased from Montreal, will be able to turn such a strong tide.

ODIE SEEKS NEW TALENT

Realizing that the Bucs are not up to par either on the offense or defense, Manager Cleghorn continued his scouting after signing Sharpshooter Sammy, and he hopes to have a pair of new defense men ready for tonight's fray. Deals now in the making may be completed today, Cleghorn says, and if success crowns his efforts the Bucco skipper will inject his new guardians into the lineup without delay.

The Leafs arrived here early this morning. Although they have met with only indifferent success to date, they are confident that they are going to get somewhere in this National League scramble. The signing of a quartet of new stars has made the Torontans a stronger aggregation than they were last season, and it is not conceling to recall that the Pirates fared none too well against them when the Leafs were at their worst. The new Toronto standard bearers are Art Duncan, former Detroit manager; Eddie Gorman, one-time P. A. A. star and last season with Ottawa; Ramsay of Toronto University and Primeau, amateur star making his pro debut.

AGAINST CHAMPS

Pirates made their best showing against the world's champion Senators, and their worst against the supposedly weak Detroit Cougars. The Bucs may win tonight if Toronto is sufficiently strong. The probable lineup:

and bruises, but all the boys escaped without injuries of serious nature.

W. VA. TICKLED.

There are light hearts and cheery voices in Morgantown this week-end, hearts that up until Thursday were low and voices that were raucous. The noted change is due to the splendid feat performed by the West Virginia Mountaineers in holding Wash-Jeff to a 6-6 deadlock in the annual classic, and kicking the Presidents' fine undefeated-once tied record right in the slats. Wash-Jeff now finds themselves out of the Big Four title race and is forced to assist in the crowning of the Panthers, who defeated both Tech and West Virginia and tied the Red and Black.

Rumors afloat having to do with the return of Spears as head coach at West Virginia may well be placed on the "bunk" hook. Rogers may go, but Spears won't return, you may lay to that, as we sailors are wont to put it. There has been more or less of an undercurrent movement on foot for some weeks to oust Ira, but now that he has put a team on the field capable of holding Wash-Jeff even, I think you may look for the announcement of his retention before many days. For another year at least.

As for Spears, since he has tied Notre Dame and gone through a season without defeat, he can be elected governor of Minnesota if he so desires. They will be chasing around after him with a bag of gold as did the folks on the coast with Warner, if they hear he is planning to leave.

And what is more, if Spears does shift posts, he will wait until he can step into the job at Dartmouth, where he played and where he's been yearning to return for a long while.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 26.—(INS.)—Herb Joesting, Minnesota's star fullback, will be unable to play in East-West football game at San Francisco, December 24, he announced today.

CLEVELANDER OUTLASTS BASQUE IN HARD GO

By DAN PARKER,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Social item: Paulino Uzcudun will sail for Spain shortly.

Senor Uzcudun made the crack before he entered the ring at Madison Square Garden last night that if he didn't beat Johnny Risko, he would take the first boat headed in the direction of his native Pyranees Mountains. The senor didn't beat Risko by a long shot. In fact it was the decision of the judges and practically every one who saw the scrap that the Bounding Basque had received a pretty good licking.

Risko knew more about Paulino's style of fighting than the senor did. Paulino's ruggedness, which pulled him through against less sturdy opponents availed him naught against the Cleveland Baker Boy.

It was the first verdict Paulino has lost—officially at least—since he arrived on our shores. Risko's margin was convincing. He took the first three rounds, wavered a bit through the middle of the fight, but outlasting the Basque Iron Man, came on with a rush in the closing rounds to clinch victory.

Jack Gross, Philadelphia, clearly outscored Sandy Seifert of Pittsburgh in a 10-round semi-final. Gross weighed 135, Seifert 133½.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Add another former light heavyweight champion to the victory string of Mickey Walker, world's middlweight boxing titleholder.

Paul Berlenbach was the latest victim of Mickey's murderous punching power in the wind-up of Promoter Jim Mullen's swattfest at the Coliseum last night. Unlike Mike McTigue, another former light heavyweight champion, Berlenbach was on his feet after 10 rounds of the toughest boxing that has been witnessed here in recent months. Paul, the ex-paralyzer, was punch drunk and reeling at the finish, however, and staggered and stumbled on many occasions along the stormy route.

Walker's vicious and persistent two-fisted attack earned him an edge in eight rounds, while two, the first and third, were fairly even.

NOTES of the BOXERS

PITTSBURGH and Cleveland amateur boxers clash in an inter-city show at the P. A. A. tonight.

Young Piazzi, Mt. Washington welterweight, is confined to bed by an attack of quinzy and his manager, Reed Brown, has been compelled to cancel two fights for next week, with Bud Cicerone at Williamsport, Monday, and with Tug Phillips at Clarksburg, W. Va., Wednesday.

Linn Jordan, of Johnstown, will box Ray Fay, of Charleroi, in the semi-final to the Willie Harmon-Young Saylor bout at Motor Square Garden Monday night.

Eddie Myers, of Detroit, and Juanito Peres Valdez, of Youngstown, a Filipino, have been matched for the semi-final to the Willie Davies-Luis Carpentero bout at McKeesport Thursday night. Valdez has boxed Black Bill, Chick Suggs and other good ones.

Joey Kotkich, local bantamweight, boxes Sammy Chernoff in a six-round bout in Brooklyn tonight.

cropped out that day that was aggravated later when a movement was started to have Jock come back to his alma mater to replace Warner, who was becoming dissatisfied. Strained relations continued until the pair got together after Thursday's game, during which Pop had scouted the Panthers with the Rosso tourney game in view. With the ice broken, Pop and Jock began to exchange confidences, and, during the talkfest, Pop paid Jock the compliment of telling him he regarded Jock as the best guard he has coached in his long career at the helm of college elevens.

A COMPARISON of the schedules played by the Pitt teams of 1916 and 1927, with the scores, follows:

1916.
Pitt	17	Westminster	0
Pitt	20	Navy	19
Pitt	20	Syracuse	0
Pitt	20	Pennsylvania	0
Pitt	56	Allegheny	0
Pitt	27	Wash-Jeff	0
Pitt	14	Carnegie Tech	0
Pitt	31	Penn State	0
Totals, Pitt ...235		Opponents	33
1927
Pitt	40	Thiel	0
Pitt	25	Grove City	0
Pitt	0	West Virginia	0
Pitt	32	Drake	7
Pitt	25	Carnegie Tech	7
Pitt	32	Allegheny	0
Pitt	0	W. & J.	0
Pitt	21	Nebraska	13
Pitt	30	Penn State	0
Totals, Pitt ...179		Opponents	39

CARNEGIE TECH, crippled, and with four defeats by major opponents under its belt, faces the Oregon Aggies at Portland, Ore., this afternoon with its back to the wall. Another defeat, in view of the condition of the squad after the grueling battle with Detroit here last Saturday, and the long train ride since, will not come as a surprise, but, win or lose, the plucky Tartans will find the local fans solidly behind them, admiring their fighting qualities and looking forward to a bigger and better season next year. Tech has come manfully through its periodic "lean" season, following its history-making decisive defeat of Notre Dame last year, and will be better equipped with man-power for the 1928 campaign.

NOTRE DAME

son. But be assured that they are not all that Howard Jones has to offer in the way of opposition for Notre Dame.

Drury is no "Red" Grange, to run opposition dizzy; he is no Benny Friedman, to toss passes hither and yon; he is no Herb Joesting, to tear lines to shreds. But he is a little of all three, and a whole lot of Drury.

The team that will aid and abet Drury and Hibbs, is an all-sophomore aggregation, which makes its undefeated swing through the season the more remarkable.

It carries, beyond its starting lineup, some very effective reserve material, though on that score, I am afraid it must yield to Notre Dame.

No one, unless it be Rockne himself, and the chances for even that are doubtful, can tell which combination of the 35 players he has brought here for the game, is the most effective. Nor is there a great deal of difference between the men who start the game and those who replace them.

Johnny Niemiec, a triple threat, is regarded by the Trojans as the individual star of the Notre Dame team, being placed in a niche above Christy Flanagan and the rest.

Three touchdowns, they argue, will be required to win this game from Southern California, for neither Notre Dame, nor anyone else can keep the invaders from scoring twice. That is their story and they will stick to it.

DEMPSEY TO SPEND CHRISTMAS ON COAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(INS.)—Because of the failure of his effort to get immediate action in settlement of the suits brought against him by Jack Kearns here, Jack Dempsey plans to spend the Christmas holidays in California and return to New York shortly after the first of the year to begin a long engagement in vaudeville.

Dempsey leaves today for Wilmington, Del., on a visit to his wife's parents and will head for Los Angeles the first of next week. His vaudeville tour will take him from New York back to the Pacific Coast and keep him busy until late in the spring, thus precluding his participation in any indoor matches.

KINGSLEY HOUSE will attempt to score its second straight victory when it travels to Sharpsburg Y. M. C. A. tonight to meet Manager Girty's quintet in a West Penn League battle.

The Sharpsburg passers have been having quite a difficult time striking their winning stride, but this team is too strong to remain in the rut for any length of time.

The Kingsley House passers, on the other hand, have been playing a splendid game despite the loss of several of last year's veterans.

RALPH HEINAUER, prominent Chartiers Valley sportsman, is going to enter the McKees Rocks Business Men in the Allegheny County League next Tuesday night when the magnates of this circuit meet to reorganize the loop.

Heinauer has gathered together a galaxy of well-known floor performers and has obtained the use of the Hamilton School auditorium for all home attractions.

Among the stars who will wear the colors of the McKees Rocks Business Men are McHenry, Waynesburg; Conrad, Carnegie Tech; Malcolm and Otey, McKees Rocks High School; Courtney, Canonsburg, and Orr and Kissell of last year's St. Joseph's Lyceum quintet. All home games are scheduled for Monday nights. Dates are available for non-league games with first-class teams. Call Ralph Heinauer at Federal 1463.

DISPLEASED over the treatment received from the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. last season, when the Cuyler All-Stars were scheduled to play on the hilltop, Bill Graham, manager of the Hill Top Y. M. C. A. is reported ready to withdraw his quintet from the amateur field and enroll it in the Allegheny County League.

The Cuylers were booked to play at Hill Top last season, but the A. A. U. refused to sanction the contest and it was called off.

Butler Y. M. C. A. is another amateur organization that is eager to enroll in the Allegheny County loop, according to J. J. Freund, Jr., sponsor of the league.

GENE IN XMAS SHOW

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(INS.)—Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight boxing champion, will aid a local charity organization by appearing in a Christmas benefit show here December 18, it was announced today. The program will consist of boxing exhibitions and theatricals.

J. J. Ryans Battle C.M.C.

By TOM BIRKS.

FOLLOWING the brilliant battle Turkey Day at New Kensington, followers of the independent championship race on the sandlots will have another treat served up today for with McKeesport Olympics billed to meet Carrick Odds, at Cycler Park, and the North Side C. M. C. in its greatest test of the season at the Bluff against the J. J. Ryans of Hazlewood, nightfall should see two more of the remaining contestants dropped from the titular race.

Public opinion has been instrumental in forcing a meeting between Buck Weaver's Carrick aggregation, that stunned the local followers by dropping West View, and the Olympics. The Iverson club must be figured in this Western Pennsylvania championship.

All of the four clubs competing today have unblemished records in games played in Western Pennsylvania. The Olympics came through their stiffest test last Saturday when the Glassport Odds bit the dust.

Both games are scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m. Capable officials have been engaged and with the feeling that abounds in the district among the followers of each club, the games loom up as interesting as any yet staged this season.

SOUTHERN LOOP SPLITS CARD

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 26.—(AP.)—The Southern Association, for the first time in its history, will have a split season in 1928, the winner of the first half playing the winner of the last half in a post-series for the pennant. Three victories will decide the championship, the play to be governed by a commission composed of President John D. Martin and the presidents of the contending clubs.

Club owners, in deciding upon the split season at their annual fall meeting here yesterday, acted in accordance with what they believed to be popular demand. Under this plan increased attendance was foreseen because of the two races and the post-season series.

support, they'd made a game of it for any opposition.

The visiting guards were not so good, and the interminable supply of ends which Bezdek shuffled in and out of the game were quite outclassed—though Delp looked like a good football player on the occasions when he was "in there."

ONCE more this year, as in many previous seasons, Pitt was able to box the Penn State ends and get fleet halfbacks loose for long runs. Penn State veterans contend that Bezdek's method of keeping his ends in close to help the tackles stop the feared Pitt off-tackle drive, is at fault, for it permits the Blue and Gold speedsters to swing wide and get away in the open field.

It was this that gave the Panthers their four-quarter victory in 1926, when Fycek eliminated State's wingmen on play after play to permit Welch to run wild for two touchdowns.

FATHER PITT may feel confident that his football prestige will be upheld in the fair Northwest this afternoon when Carnegie Tech's football team will go into action at Portland, Ore., against the Oregon Aggies.

Even if the Skibos do not succeed in winning after the long journey across the country they may be counted upon to give an account of themselves in a fighting way and with a display of spirit that will be a credit to themselves and their city.

LOCAL GOLFER WINS IN PINEHURST PLAY

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 26.—Don Parson, of Youngstown, O., was the victim of an upset yesterday when R. L. Scofield, of New York, played the championship course in 73 to beat him by 3 and 2. Scofield did the outgoing nine in one under par with three successive birdies.

C. Bernard Shea, Oakmont golfer and the only Pittsburgher playing, registered a victory by winning the second division. Shea defeated C. E. Banta, of Albany, by 2 and 1 after a match which was even all the way.

SPORT LENS

about the dogma that a team that won't be beat can't be beat, with the result that defeat came. But that last consideration was a digression. The important point to be remembered is the Spartan spirit of All-America selectors who annually attempt a task which they admit themselves is impossible of achievement.

THERE are so many great teams and great players scattered all over the land that no one can eye them all critically, and besides, after Mr. A picks an All-America—just 11 men out of thousands of stars—Mr. B. can come along and select one every bit as good.

Viewed as a part of the country at large, the district of football which comes under the eye of the Pittsburgher is minute, yet football is so well recruited with great stars that it would be not extraordinarily difficult to pick a team from teams which have played here and at adjacent points which would get a tie with any All-America selection.

This, of course, is not a new idea. Even those who attempt to pick All-America elevens will admit that, yet with great fervor they go ahead and pick an eleven and stamp it as the best that can be mustered, anywhere.

TO MAKE the situation a little more fatuous, most of the pickings come from either successful teams or teams known as major elevens. Thus, talent such as to be found on Geneva, will be entirely overlooked, and very possibly a great man like Welch might be overlooked, but for the fact that his mates went through an undefeated season. Welch is Welch, whether Pitt had won all its games or lost them all, but Welch, in a lean season, would never get the recognition his talents deserve. Even now, it is not certain that he will make All-America stature.

OFTEN, it is not the men but the circumstances of their careers which cause them to be cataloged as All-America or as not All-America. For instance, a boy named Harpster, who is not so bad in the Carnegie Tech backfield, will never get a tumble, but put Harpster behind the Pitt line, and let him have Hagan and Booth and Fisher spilling would-be tacklers, and he might be All-America. He is not All-America perhaps because his team, a little green, could not afford him support.

One wouldn't have to go much further than the four teams we know so well, Pitt, Wash-Jeff, Carnegie, and State to get a team that would be every bit as good as any All-America team selected.

Still I am not against the custom. It doesn't harm anyone, greatly, and it does furnish some amusement to see the stamp of authority placed arbitrarily on a selection which positively bears no authority.

A Real Traveling Athlete

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 26.—Bud Stewart, University of Illinois athlete, lays claim to a travel record. Playing on the Illinois football, basketball and baseball teams, he has covered 24,000 miles and plans to play on the cage and diamond teams in 1928.

CARROLL TEAM FACES TEST

Westinghouse High School, City League champions and touted as being one of the strongest of the 1927 crop of W. P. I. A. L. elevens, will meet the test of the season today in Elmer Carroll's Wilkinsburg High machine on the gridiron at Graham Field, Wilkinsburg. The game is scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m.

By playing Westinghouse, Wilkinsburg is permitting the River Lakers to get in their fifth W. P. I. A. L. game, which will give them ranking as titular contenders, providing, of course, that they win today. Such a possibility, however, is far from a certain one, for Wilkinsburg is highly rated in school circles, and being a Carroll-trained team, is double dangerous.

The two schools have been bitter rivals for years back, and a game, that for sheer thrills, interest and the all around ability of the contestants, has not been equalled in scholastic circles this season, is promised for today.

One thing that may check Westinghouse today will be the loss of two star backs, Ormiston and Mateney, who were so severely shaken up and injured in the Oliver battle a week ago that they are not expected to be able to get into the action today.

Georgie Enlivens the House While Ann Gives Chase To Lecture Her

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann and Georgie Hastings, sisters, live together at Mrs. O'Leary's boarding house. Ann, the elder, works in a factory, and Georgie works in an insurance office. Ann is proud of her sister's good looks and charming manner. She thinks it would be a good thing if Georgie married Bill Warren, who has no money, but who is madly in love with Georgie. Bill invites Ann to lunch and shows her an engagement ring he has bought for Georgie. Jimmy McCormick, manager of one of the departments, an admirer of Ann's, asks her out for the evening, but she refuses. On the way home she sees Georgie riding in a shining new car with a stranger. Later the car stops at Mrs. O'Leary's door.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

YET she must be talked to, she must be scolded, it would never do to let her have her own head. Ann looked back over the last three years; remembering once more her mother's death, the quiet, fall dusk when the doctor and the nurse had left the sick room, and she had bent over the pale, wasted figure, listening to the faint voice.

And she had promised—she had promised to care for Georgie, watch out for her, see that no harmful thing ever happened to her.

Georgie had been a frightened, long-legged thing then, and shy—yes, actually shy. And three short years—three years of Mrs. Leary's boarding house, and Lester and Robbins Real Estate and Insurance—had made her into another person.

Yet for all her capability, Georgie knew nothing. Underneath her flippancy, her casual daring, she was as innocent as that shy, long-legged little thing who had looked up at Ann's face with the helplessness of a small child that night her mother had died.

Ann took her things off, gave a rueful look at the dress which she had promised to finish sewing for Georgie that very night, and departed downstairs. It was almost time for dinner at Mrs. Leary's, and probably Georgie was already in the living room, making fun of old Col. Montgomery with his twisted mustaches and pretense of a military glory which was highly dubious. Or she was talking excitedly maybe to the two spinsters from upstate, who always listened with round eyes and said "Oh" and "Ah" in unison, like a chorus.

But though the two spinsters were in the living room, turning over the pages of magazines, and though Col. Montgomery pulled at his mustache and seemed to dream of the battles at which he had never been present, Georgie was not in view.

"Georgie been here?" Ann asked.

The colonel with a military gesture indicated in the direction of the dining room.

Ann solemnly made her way there, feeling a little ridiculous. It was as if Georgie were hiding from her, and she were some angry parent, anxious to punish a culprit. It was hard to say or do anything, when Georgie made her look so absurd in her own eyes.

The dining room was empty, but a laugh came from the kitchen. Where Georgie was, someone usually laughed. Ann pushed open the swinging door.

Georgie was sitting perched up on a high stool. Martha, the big cook, was grinning broadly.

"Oh, Martha, what's that!" Georgie exclaimed, and as Martha turned, Georgie reached swiftly and dexteriously and fished a doughnut from a big bowl on the table. Here eyes were dancing. It wasn't necessary to steal the doughnut—it was just more fun.

Ann smiled watching her, and at the sight of the smile, Georgie's face became friendly.

"Oh, Ann, what do you think Martha's been telling me. She just said that—"

"You've been into my doughnuts!" Martha broke in with a sudden flash of intuition.

"Oh, Martha, how could you accuse a lady of such a thing!"

With the doughnut behind her back, she slowly backed away. The swing door flew open once again, and Mrs. Leary, red-faced and fat as Martha herself, came into the kitchen.

Her face was tired also, and worried, but at the sight of Georgie snatching a bite from her spoil, and as quickly hiding it, she grinned.

"You get no dessert tonight for that!" she declared.

"Try and stop me from getting any!" Georgie mocked her.

Mrs. Leary, with an agility surprising for her size and weight, sprang forward suddenly. Georgie turned to fly, was cornered. Mrs. Leary's arms went around, she bent her head; she kissed Georgie as she might have kissed a child whose charm makes up for all its badness.

"Now you be getting out of my kitchen!" Mrs. Leary said. "Or else there'll be no dinner. I can't do anything with Martha, when you're near."

"Georgie, I want to see you," Ann said quietly as they crossed the dining room together.

"Oh, not now. Wait till after dinner. Can't I have a little fun?" Georgie pouted.

"But I want to see you now."

Georgie went on, made her way into the living room, pretended to stumble, caught Colonel Montgomery's arm, laughed at the look of horrified astonishment on the faces of the two, middle-aged women whom life had passed by. Impossible to say anything to her now, impossible to do anything when she was so flagrantly rebellious.

Ann took a book and sat down. After dinner, she'd wait till after dinner, and then have a real talk.

She wouldn't let Georgie's charm alter her determination.

CHAPTER III.

PERHAPS Georgie herself realized that it was hopeless to avoid Ann's lecture. She looked a little sullen, a little bored at the prospect.

When dinner had dragged its monotonous course through to the end, Georgie rose and went up to the room, without any further attempts to escape or hide.

She was standing before the mirror, a lipstick in her hand, her level brows drawn down in concentration. Her soft light hair seemed to retain the sunlight, her eyes frank and quick and feminine, the young curves of her young body—all these were irresistible.

She would never be prettier than she was now in the very heyday of her youth and freshness.

Ann's regular features with their hint of gravity, the warm, understanding mouth, the eyes with their sense of troubled wisdom and responsibility, her smooth, carefully tended hair—these might outlast Georgia's more perishable beauty, but they could never reach the summit which Georgie had attained.

Ann stood in the doorway, watching her younger sister, frowning a little. She wasn't angry, but she was uncomfortable. There was nothing so wrong about "picking up" men, she told herself for the hundredth time, not at any rate when your spirit was as light-hearted and innocent of motive as Georgie's. What was wrong was the danger it involved, and of course Georgie felt that she could take care of herself in any situation.

"I'm awfully tired," Ann said simply.

Georgie had not turned, but now her lip twitched a little.

"Oh, of course, I wouldn't think of your working on that dress tonight if you don't want to."

"You know I don't mean that, Georgie. Why are you so unfair?"

Georgie turned instinctively with a rush of warmth and remorse. "Oh, darling, I don't mean to be. I'm really so crazy I don't know what I'm saying half the time. I'm sorry you're so tired."

"Coming home in that rush hour takes all the strength out of me," Ann sighed.

Again Georgie's mood veered, suddenly and without warning.

"While I, you mean, rode home comfortably in the open air in a good-looking car. That is what you mean, isn't it?"

"No, Georgie, it isn't. But since you've brought it up, I do want to talk to you about it. Where did you meet that man, Georgie?"

"Corner of South and Glendon streets. Any objection?" Georgie demanded. Her lip trembled a little in a way she had. She looked almost pitiable, so that the sting of her words meant nothing. It was just desperate defiance.

* * *

"Why will you do that, Georgie? You shouldn't."

"Why shouldn't I?"

"Because—because—Because you shouldn't!"

"You see, you haven't even a reason!" Georgie declared. "You're just old-fashioned, and you can't understand how I feel about things like that. Why what harm in the world could there be. One of the girls in our office is married to a man she met like that—he's got all kinds of money, too, and he's crazy about her."

"Exceptions don't prove the rule."

"Oh, Ann, you make me sick. You talk as if you'd been reading

ROUND-THE-WORLD FLIER HERE

ARMY ACE

Lieut. Leigh Wade, who was here for the Westinghouse employes banquet last night, piloted one of the army planes around the world in the memorable trip of 1925.

HE SPEAKS OF AVIATION

Westinghouse banqueters heard Lieut. Wade discuss not only his personal experiences but the future of practical aviation as seen by the seasoned pilots of the army and navy corps. Westinghouse officials greeted Wade on his arrival yesterday. Left to right are, W. R. Marshall, R. C. Edgar, Lieut. Wade and F. N. Barclay.

WOMAN KILLED BETWEEN 2 AUTOS

Mrs. Anna Fredericks, 44, of Lincoln place, McKeesport, was killed last night while crossing the McKeesport-Pittsburgh boulevard in front of her home, when she was caught between two automobiles traveling in opposite directions. William C. Pfund, 800 North Canal street, North Side, and Morris Mandel, 148 Third street, McKeesport, drivers of the automobiles, were arrested and held for the coroner.

Samuel Katz, 927 Rose street, McKeesport, was injured yesterday when his junk wagon was struck by an automobile driven by Harry Gruber, 1208 Capitol avenue, McKeesport, at Riverton street and Fifth avenue. Gruber suffered a fractured right arm.

John Coupic, 9, of 214 McClure street, Homestead, was injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by James McNeil, 525 Third avenue, Homestead.

Charles Cox, city, entered suit against the Yellow Cab Company yesterday in Common Pleas Court for damages for personal injuries suffered when he was struck by a taxicab, May 27.

THANKSGIVING DINNER LANDS MAN IN JAIL

Michael Unk, of 29 Bouquet street, Creighton, charged with having stolen a chicken for his Thanksgiving dinner, was held for court yesterday by Justice of the Peace John McKenna, of Glassmere. Samuel Hawk, of Glassmere, testified that Unk stole one of his chickens Wednesday night.

WOMAN STARTS COURT RIOT

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 26.—"While I was ill she took off her wedding ring and threw it at me," and said, "take your old ring, I can get all the money I want from 'Red' Phillips." That was the defense of William R. Gump, 428 Wallace street, when he was charged by his wife with non-support before Judge Uriah P. Rossiter Friday.

Court attaches nearly had to eject the wife from the courtroom as she vehemently denied the testimony. The court discharged the defendant.

DUBS CHILDREN "BRATS;" SUED FOR DIVORCE

Children by former marriage led to a separation between Fred Wilke, a railroader living in Hazelwood, and his wife, Myrtle Wilke, the husband testified in divorce proceedings heard by Judge Thomas J. Ford.

"She called my two children by a former marriage, 'brats,' and said she would not take care of them and finally left, taking her own baby with her," Wilke testified. "She also threatened to cut my heart out with a big butcher knife."

They were living at 716 Taylor way, Wilkinsburg, when they finally separated. Mrs. Wilke went to Ohio, taking her own child and leaving the two children of Wilke's in the house by themselves, he testified. They were married in 1925, Mrs. Wilke being 19, and Wilke 33.

DIVORCED WHEN MATE FAILED CHURCH WEDDING

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 26.—Mrs. Minnie Jacobson was granted a decree annulling her marriage to Max Jacobson of St. Louis. She claimed he had refused to keep his promise to follow their civil wedding with a Jewish ceremony.

Will Says Carol Only 2 Wives From Throne

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 26.—All the day's news comes from Europe. Rumania's dictator died, so that helps Prince Carol's case. He is only two wives removed from the throne now. Another headline says: "One hundred million more men under arms in Europe than in 1914." "England sends word to Italy to lay off Jugo-Slavia."

WILL ROGERS

It's taken a long time for Europe to get back to normal, but it's slowly doing it.

Yours,

WILL.

CARDINAL BONZANO DIES

By International News Service.

ROME, Nov. 26. — Cardinal Bonzano, former apostolic delegate at Washington, died at 8:10 a. m. today in the nursing home at Quisisana, where he had been confined since he underwent a serious operation.

Cardinal Bonzano rallied immediately after the operation, which was for cancer of the stomach, but recently he took a turn for the worse.

END PEACEFUL

Late last night attending physicians admitted that they held little hope for his recovery.

The end came peacefully.

Under the will which Cardinal Bonzano made last Thursday, his entire estate goes to charity.

Cardinal Bonzano was among the most prominent members of the College of Cardinals and was regarded highly by the Vatican. Because of his long experience at Washington, as apostolic delegate, he was chosen by the Pope as his holiness' special representative to the Eucharistic Congress held during the summer of 1926 at Chicago.

Deep concern was felt at the Vatican today over the Cardinal's death.

When he arrived in America to attend the Eucharistic Congress, Cardinal Bonzano was accorded an enthusiastic welcome. In New York a magnificent reception was held at the City Hall and Mayor Walker and Gov. Smith paid their respects.

A special train, painted scarlet, was placed at Cardinal Bonzano's disposal when he and his entourage made the journey to Chicago.

N. Y. BANK TO FLOAT BIG VIENNA LOAN

VIENNA, Nov. 26.—The National City Bank of New York, in association with the Vienna Bankverein, is reported to have agreed to a loan to the municipality of Vienna of $30,000,000. The price of the issue was given as 88½.

Erie "Trial Marriage" Ends in Suit by Wife

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 26.—Erie's first "companionate marriage" has culminated in charges of non-support. John E. Constable, Jr., 446 West Fifth street, told Judge Uriah P. Rossiter that before his marriage to Mrs. Constable, formerly Viola Griffin, Seventh and Ash streets, he had entered into an agreement with her whereby they were each to live with their ownparents after the marriage—a sort of companionate marriage, he said.

Constable was haled into court by his wife on a charge of non-support. Instead of residing with each other's parents, she said, they both went to her home and remained there until his parents came and took him home.

The husband testified she went out with other men and that "one time at a party she got drunk." Allegations were hurled by both parties until Judge Rossiter ordered the case continued for a month.

FIGHT VIEWERS' AWARD

Thomas R. Wilson and Rosalind U. Wilson, of California avenue, Avalon, filed an appeal in Common Pleas Court from the amount of damages awarded them by the board of viewers for property taken in a street improvement. The Wilsons allege that they are the owners of two and one-half acres in Avalon, improved with a dwelling and a garage valued at $80,000. The borough of Avalon in locating, opening and grading North Chestnut street in the borough took a 20-foot wide strip of land from the Wilson property, for which viewers awarded the owners $2,130. The Wilsons claim the award is not fair and that their property has been damaged $15,000.

BELIEVES GIRL IS SUICIDE

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Authorities are convinced that Amelia Williamson, whose body was found beside the desk of her employer, Oscar J. Schnert, committed suicide. A jar of poison on her own desk and a goodby telephone message to her employer's wife led to the suicide theory. Relatives of the girl said she had been despondent.

a lot of lies about poisoned needles and murders and things like that."

"But things like that do happen, don't they? And what's the use of getting to know a man with lots of money if it's only bound to end in some ugly way. Because sooner or later he'll show what he's like and then—"

"Oh," why bother about 'then.' Before he does, you've been to the theater and dances and dined in swell places and had a lot of fun, haven't you?"

"I can't argue with you, Georgie. Only I'm just going to ask you once more."

"I've got a right to live my own life."

"No, you haven't, Georgie. No one has. When mother asked me to look out for you, I knew that was what I had to do. And you're such a baby, even though you think you know everything. You see, I'm doing this because—because mother would want me to."

Ann's voice had trembled the least bit. Georgie was standing, facing her now, with changing expressions in her eyes. Then all at once she weakened and gave in.

"Oh, you just know I can't do anything when you bring in Mother like that. I think it's mean of you, Ann, I think it's mean of you."

But she was crying with Ann's arms around her.

"So you won't go on doing things like that, will you, Georgie," Ann was asking softly.

"No." The word crept through little muffled sobs.

"And if that man does meet you there again, you won't encourage him any more."

"No."

"Oh, Georgie, you're so sweet. I don't blame any man for falling in love with you. I don't blame Bill Warren."

"Bill Warren! As if he—don't be silly."

"He's wild about you," Ann protested loyally.

"Oh, he'd be wild about anyone," Georgie disclaimed. "He's all right. I'm going out with him tonight, you know."

"Yes, I know."

"What do you mean?"

"I happened to see him today and he told me he was going to call for you."

"Oh!" Satisfied by the explanation, Georgie turned away, began to change her things. The whole episode of the scolding, her quick tears, possibly even her promise, were as if they never had been. She was humming to herself. But suddenly she looked up.

"Why did you talk to me like that about Bill, Ann."

"Oh, I don't know."

Cool, clear eyes, luminous and thoughtful studied Ann now. Ann bent her head over the dress on which she was sewing, conscious of that scrutiny.

It would never do to let Georgie know what she really had been thinking! Of Bill Warren with his honest, good-hearted character, his boyish boastfulness, the queer wistfulness of him. Of Georgie married—settled down—safe with someone—someone like Bill Warren.

Was it that thought that made a sudden lump come into Ann's throat. It must be that. Somehow the thought itself actually hurt her. Perhaps it was because she would Miss Georgie so if she did marry, did settle down, and become sensible.

And yet she wanted that to happen. She knew that Georgie for all her modernness, her daring of speech and action, her casualness about men, would find in an early marriage the safest and happiest of fortunes.

Georgie ought to marry. And Bill Warren was—well, he was as nice as she was, as attractive as she was, without even guessing it.

Ann considered. Should she say anything at all—or just wait and watch? It did not take her an instant to decide that in Georgie's case it was wiser to say nothing. Bill had the ring ready, and a desperate courage in his heart. He meant to propose tonight.

Ann told herself she would sit up until Georgie came home. When she did, it would be easy to read the news in her face. And then suddenly Ann felt unhappy.

She did not know what she wanted to happen—and she could not understand her uncertainty. She could not understand the way her own heart seemed to beat at the mere thought of Bill Warren.

Well, ANYways, my dear, Arab simply inSISted on by GOing to this ZOO place with him because he said he wanted to find OUT about this COAT of his—whether it REALly IS raccOON or not, because you see the odd soul was sort of BAFfled at the way CATS and things have been purSUing him on account of this COAT—can you BEAR it, my dear? Well, ANYways, I guess it was LUCKy I sort of went aLONG to iDENtify him because I give you my WORD, my dear, I b'lieve if he had VENtured to this ZOO aLONE he would NEVer have got OUT of it again, because while we were sort of STANDing in front of this raccOON cage, my dear, I offered ARab some PEAnuts and this odd KEEPer called my aTENtion to this SIGN which says 'Do not FEED the ANimals'—can you BEAR it, my dear? But ARab was TOO imPRESSED by the INcidence because he said it sort of PROVED this COAT was real raccOON or something, but I think it was a sort of an INsult just the SAME, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" — By Adele Garrison

Lillian Underwood's Genius Husband Looms Again Mysteriously on the Horizon

I STARED at Philip Veritzen with the feeling that I was listening to a fantastic fairy tale. In the old days that now seemed so far remote I had known Harry Underwood's mentality was brilliant, if erratic, but I never should have suspected him of being capable of the scholarly fragments of drama which had appealed to the great dramatic producer so strongly. I knew what sure and fastidious taste my employer possessed, and realized that when he said the bits which Mr. Underwood had given him in years gone by went far beyond anything he ever had seen in sheer beauty and originality of treatment he was pronouncing the last word in artistic judgment.

But the thing which intrigued me most was Mr. Veritzen's belief that Harry Underwood was the writer of a remarkable new play which had been sent to him in a mysterious manner and purporting to be the work of a young and unknown author. That my employer might be mistaken in his deduction never entered my mind. I knew his unerring judgement too well. Harry Underwood was alive, and his really remarkable brain was functioning again. This promised that he was no longer indulging in the dissipation which had wrecked his career and brought him so near the death metel cut to a traitor.

I found myself also sharing Mr. Veritzen's belief that his old friend was no longer in a foreign country, but near at hand. This meant that I again might meet the man who during my acquaintance with him alternately had fascinated me by his brilliancy and laughing audacity and repelled me by a certain hard unscrupulousness which lay beneath his nonchalant exterior.

Suddenly I became aware that Mr. Veritzen was waiting for a comment upon his astounding news, and I aroused myself from the reverie into which his words had thrown me.

"I never have heard more exciting news," I told him truthfully. "It seems almost unbelievable. Frankly, I never expected to see Mr. Underwood again, while now—"

"While now he may walk back into our lives at any minute," Mr. Veritzen rejoined. Then he gave me a queer little appraising and questioning look, and I realized that there was some direct purpose behind his apparently casual revelation to me of Harry Underwood's latest exploit.

"Perhaps you can guess why I have told you this," he said.

Comprehension came suddenly to me. I nodded.

"You would like me to tell Mrs. Underwood of your discovery," I said. I made no attempt to hide the dismay in my voice. Discussing Lillian's affairs with her, unasked, is something which simply isn't done. Yet I knew that it was a task which only I could perform. No one else, save her young daughter, is so near to her. Two years ago I should have subordinated myself to Robert Savarin, the famous artist, who, as her first teacher, won her heart, unknowingly, and then after many years came back into her life again. But Robert Savarin's unbending, archaic ideas of woman's place in the world and jealousy of Lillian's work had shattered their revived romance, and Robert Savarin was in Europe, trying to forget in the ardor of his work the vision of belated happiness which he had cherished when fate appeared to have sent Harry Underwood forever away from Lillian's life. Lillian never had told me in so many words that she had decided definitely to give up Robert Savarin, but I knew it, nevertheless; knew also that in her love for her young daughter, Marion Morton, she was finding rapturous happiness marred only by the separation from the young girl which Marion's absence at school entailed.

As if Mr. Veritzen had clairvoyant powers, he smiled down at my dismayed face.

"Yes, I do wish you to tell Mrs. Underwood about this mysterious message—I almost said from the dead," he replied. "Perhaps you have not discovered yet that I am extremely partisan, and I was always fond of Harry Underwood. If there is any chance of his returning to the place in life which he ought rightfully to occupy, I'd like to be sure that his wife realized he had a few cards to match those played by that archaic artist, Robert Savarin."

The Victor and the Spoil

By Fanny Darrell

victor belong the spoils," may be true ...gh but in this case who is the victor and who represents the spoils? Of course, he is the Hero of the Hour; he has led his team to Victory and is the most worshiped of the entire school. Amid cheers and acclaim of his admirers he rushes off to the arms of the Most Wonderful Girl, claiming his reward.

isn't she also victorious? She alone, from all the throngs of feminine admirers of this Hero, has gained him for her own. She is the envy of the bevy of beautiful girls, each of whom would consider herself proud and happy to be thus claimed by the Man of the Hour. She has become a heroine in her own right, as she accepts the Spoil and

Use Powder Discreetly

By MARIA JERITZA

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day

"DISGUISING of the face" is one definition of make-up in my dictionary. And too often that is what modern make-up amounts to—a bizarre masquerade of natural feminine beauty.

A whitewashed nose, a violently red slash where a mouth should be, and hectic red cheeks are grotesque rather than beautiful. And they banish from a face every trace of naturalness and individuality.

Yet powder and rouge, like all pure cosmetics, have their place in the scheme of things. It is not so much their use as their abuse that mars so many faces.

There are times when a woman is exhausted, yet simply must look rested, bright and well for some particular occasion. Then it is that a little rouge, skillfully applied, may simulate the appearance of health. Other times women find that powder and rouge counteract the look of pallor caused by strong artificial lights. But, as a rule, "dressing up the face" with artificial color does not improve it nearly as much as would the same amount of time and effort spent in a brisk walk outdoors, a swim, a game of tennis or a quick, cool sponge bath to stimulate circulation and feed the tissue with life-giving, pure blood, which not only lends vivid color to the lips and cheeks, but sheen to the hair, sparkle to the eyes and a velvety texture to the skin.

Powder has been used since time immemorial to perfume the skin and tone down its tendency to shine. Pure talc and pure rice powder are harmless to the average skin when correctly applied and removed. There are many face powders on the market that can be safely used by most women. Apply powder evenly with a light touch and a clean puff. It is heavy make-up that injures the skin texture. Powder is drying, however, and should be used sparingly by a woman with a naturally dry skin.

Not all women realize the importance of exactly matching the natural tone of the skin in buying powder. Select your powder of a clear, unflattering mirror by the same kind of light in which it will be used.

Blondes, as a rule, require powders in clear flesh range, and also clear rose rouge and a light, bright lipstick, when lipstick and rouge are used.

A brunette will be more likely to choose one of the in-between shades of powder with an ochre or peach hue and rouge and lipstick of orange tone. Choose the very best and use only a little, is a safe rule when it comes to powder and rouge.

Powder lightly over your face and neck, beneath your chin and back of your ears. Powder-rouge may be applied over this coat of powder, but it is always advisable to powder again lightly over the rouge.

After you powder your face dip your eyebrow brush in water and brush your brows and lashes to remove every vestige of powder. Always remove powder and rouge at night with cold cream or almond or olive oil.

Used discreetly, a good grade of powder should not harm your complexion, and is dainty, refreshing and cooling.

Sole Turnovers

Have a thick flounder cut into six filets. Poach on boiling salted water for five minutes, drain and slip into a rich thick cream sauce. Dust with a little cayenne, add a teaspoonful of onion juice and a little grated cheese. Have a good short pie crust rolled thin and cut in squares, lay in each a filet and a little of the sauce, fold cornerwise and seal the edges with floured tines of a fork. Lay on a buttered baking sheet and bake a delicate brown. Serve on a hot dish and serve the remaining cream sauce hot in a sauce boat.

Scarfs

Light as thistledown are the latest mufflers and scarfs of zephyr-like wool, with threads of silk woven to form a lustrous pattern. These soft cashmere novelties come in artistic and unusual color combinations, that softly blend and are very modish for street wear.

FOR THE LOVELORN

Anonymous

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your columns for the last few days, but as yet I have seen nothing that will enlighten my own predicament. Hence, I have decided to write to you, which is something I had never thought would be necessary. But a little advice from someone who seems to be so well versed on the subject at hand as you, I think will benefit me greatly. I am 20 years old, am quite serious and levelheaded for my age. Drinking does not interest me in the least. However, about eight months ago I met a girl who is about 18. Before that I had plenty of those so-called puppy love affairs, but since I have met this particular party I have changed immensely. I have not been out with anyone else since, and when I'm not with her, I stay at home. She, however, is a little different. She has about two other dates each week, during which, I don't think she conducts herself like she should. Or rather like I would want her to. I admit I am a little jealous, but do you think it is necessary that she should back with these others as freely as she might with me? Of course, you understand, we are both so much in love, and have become so accustomed to each other that it would be out of the question to stop seeing the girl. And, even if I intend to marry the girl I don't think it would be fair to ask her to go out with no one but me. Do you? She herself, denies some of the stories I have heard about her, and whom should I believe? Twice, she has lied to me. I know all of her past, which is nothing to brag about. But how am I to prevent her from starting downward again? She admits she has felt differently since she has known me, but as yet I am not entirely satisfied. I can't let her go, because I think too much of her, and besides it is not yet too late. Can you think of some method whereby I can make her understand her folly? Or if everything is all right, and not like I suspect, how can I make sure? Is there a way I can test her?

ANONYMOUS.

The girl, of course, shouldn't be permitting anyone, you included, to make love to her. Since you admit that you do pet with her, then I cannot see how you can expect to offer her good advice on the subject. Tell her just how you feel about it and show her by example that you disapprove of such actions. You are right in believing that you should not expect to monopolize her time.

One Who Knows

DEAR MISS GALE:

I could not resist answering A Nurse's letter. You say there are a million good girls to one bad girl. Surely you are not one of the million, when you say all men are apes. If the men are apes the girls are not far behind when it comes to mocking. They are cutting their hair like the boys and smoking, drinking and swearing. I do not say all girls are bad, but I have yet to meet a nice homeloving girl. A few words, Miss Gale, on the smoking question: I think the men are mostly to blame, causing the girls to smoke. But the girl that cannot say "no" lacks will power. Give us your opinion, girls. I know a girl who smokes cigarets. I asked her why she did it and she said they dare her to. Girls, don't be afraid of a dare. The one that thinks ahead will not think back in sorrow. These so-called sheiks are just making fools out of you. Don't think I am old-fashioned. I am not. I like to have a good time. I do not smoke, drink or gamble. I am a lover of outdoor life. Good luck.

ONE WHO KNOWS.

Your advice to girls is excellent.

Fudge

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been going with a boy for about a month. He went with a girl friend of mine and they had a quarrel. He then asked me for a date and I gave it to him. I have been going with him ever since. He home walks me comes over every evening and some weeks I don't see him. One night my sister and I went to a dance. When he came in he danced with me the first time. He then asked me if he and his boy-friend could take us home. I said yes. I introduced him to a girl and after that he stayed and danced with her and her sister. When I was ready to go home, he came up to me and told me that they were taking the other girls home. It made me jealous, but I didn't say anything. He called up in a week and asked me if he could come over and I said yes. He came over and apologized and I accepted. I told him it didn't hurt me, but he said he knew it did and would never let it happen again. Do you think I should have accepted him? He tells me that I am the only one that means anything to him. He said he wishes he could make me like him as well as he likes me. I do like this boy. Should I tell him? Another thing I would like to ask you about is this: My girl friend that he went with is very jealous. She came to me and told me a great many things that he said about me when he was going with her. Do you think I should ask him if he said such things? I think it is her jealousy. He told me once that he never said a thing about me, and he would "lay out" anyone who did.

FUDGE.

That was a most insulting thing for him to do, my dear, but if you like him so well it is natural to forgive him. However, you should not be going to dances without an escort, you know. Pay no attention to what the other girl says as she is, no doubt, simply jealous.

A Perfect Gentleman

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a young man in my twenties. I will be quite frank with you. I just wish to ask a very few questions. Are there not any more young ladies in our great city? I think there are some that are worth anything. I have gone out with different types, but they all seem to be the same, dumb and simple. All they seem to know is how to dance, and do a lot of other degrading things. They ask me for a cigaret, something I do not indulge in, and they find it a kind of surprise. Where is there a young lady in Pittsburgh who would rather read a good wholesome book than go to a silly dance? I have been so far disappointed in our future generation, young men as well as young ladies. I am thanking you very kindly for your space in the newspaper of which I am a constant reader.

A PERFECT GENTLEMAN.

It is a very natural thing for a young girl to enjoy dancing, and surely not to be so severely censured. There are lots of girls who enjoy dancing and also are quite capable of enjoying a good book. You cannot expect perfection in a girl any more than you can give perfection, yourself. I don't approve of drinking and smoking, either, and there are a great many girls who agree with us.

Just Seventeen

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a constant reader of your wonderful column and now am writing this letter to pass a bit of advice to other girls. I used to laugh at these really "sensible girls" who were always advising others not to kiss every Tom, Dick or Harry that came along. Now I also have joined them in their advice. Girls, it doesn't get you anywhere and only makes you cheap. You can be more popular with the boys if you refuse to neck, and they will like you all the more for it. I found that out. I'll admit I really "got a kick out of it," but I never want to marry a fellow who kisses every girl he meets, and a decent fellow does not want to marry a "necker." Let us hope there will be other girls who will realize, as I have, that necking does not pay. There are hundreds of other ways to have a good time.

JUST SEVENTEEN.

Your advice is excellent, my dear, and is worth while since it is the result of experience.

Question Mark

DEAR MISS GALE:

Since you give such wonderful advice, I would like to have some. I am a girl of 18. I like a boy who is four years my senior. I can't say I love him, as I realize I'm too young to know what love is. Now this boy has a letter about my age and I told her that I cared for her brother. Although she promised she wouldn't tell him I think she broke her promise. Now, how should I act toward him if I see him again? This boy moved away from my town about two months ago and hasn't written. As I like this boy, should I write to his sister just to keep in touch with him or not?

QUESTION MARK.

Act toward him just as you always have, my dear. It would be all right to keep up a correspondence with his sister if you have been good friends.

Perplexed

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have often read your wonderful advice to others and so I am coming to you for some of it. I have been going out with a fellow who used to go with a girl in my home town. Now since I have been going with him, he has broken several dates with me. A girl friend of mine says that he acted the same with the other girls. Miss Gale I am not in love with this boy, but I would like to keep him as a friend. Should I refuse to go out with him for fear he will act the same with me as he did with the other girl? Please tell me what I should do as I am.

PERPLEXED.

He is not worth while, my dear. Any boy who acts as he has done cannot be trusted. Forget him.

Horoscopes

Sunday, November 27

Fortune at some hours to all is kind.—DRYDEN.

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows success of those in employment or with letters, writings or in study, but urges caution against treachery and advises self-control.

Those whose birthday it is should succeed in employment, at labor, and with writings and publishings, but should be calm and self-contained and shun deceit.

A child born on this day should be steady, studious and clever, also industrious.

Notable Nativity: Lou Tellegen, actor.

Monday, November 28

Monday's astrological forecast shows a lively and enterprising state of affairs in general, although employment may present some small friction. Personal contacts also may not be harmonious or happy.

Those whose birthday it is may have a generally lively and successful year, despite some friction in employment or in personal alliances, in which be careful.

A child born on this day should be enterprising and resourceful and may succeed for itself better than in employment.

Notable Nativity: David Warfield, character actor.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 4 points to a decline of 3 points. Buying developed on the relatively firm showing of Liverpool, and a feeling prevailed that near month liquidation had pretty well run its course yesterday, but demand was limited and prices quickly eased under week-end realizing. There also appeared to be some southern and New Orleans selling.

January declined to 19.42c and May to 19.80c, the general list showing net losses of about 6 to 10 points toward the end of the first hour. Private cables reported a quiet market in Liverpool, with hedge selling neutralized by continental buying and fair trade calling. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 142,000 bales, against 234,000 last year.

Range on cotton futures reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

REPUBLIC STEEL AND TRUMBULL IN MERGER

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Approval of the stockholders of the Republic Iron and Steel Company and the Trumbull Steel Company was the only requirement needed today for the merger of the two concerns. The directors have voted unanimously to consolidate the companies, John A. Topping, chairman of Republic, announced.

Rumors were current in Wall street several days ago that the Trumbull and other companies would be absorbed by the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company. Today it was rumored that the Inland and Otis Steel companies, mentioned in connection with the Youngstown Sheet and Tube rumors, might eventually be brought into the Republic-Trumbull combination.

The Republic-Trumbull consolidation will have total assets of $158,000,000 and if the further combinations were carried through a $312,000,000 corporation would be the result.

Terms of the merger provide for an exchange of stock by which shareholders of Trumbull will receive one and two-thirds shares of Republic common for each share of Trumbull preferred, and one-fifth of a share of Republic common for each share of Trumbull common. Republic Steel, which is traded on the New York Stock Exchange, closed yesterday at 62⅝, up 1½ points.

Republic Steel Company is one of the foremost producers of diversified steel products in the United States and has manufacturing plants in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Alabama, Indiana and Illinois, and iron ore mines in Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Alabama. Trumbull has mills at Warren, O.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Republic Trumbull Merger.

John A. Topping, chairman of Republic Iron and Steel Company, announced that directors of that company and of Trumbull Steel Company have approved a plan to consolidate the two companies. It is proposed that each Trumbull preferred share receive 1 2-3 shares of Republic common and 1-5 share of Republic common for each Trumbull common share. Stockholders of both concerns will be asked to ratify the union.

Steel Election Not Due; How Trade Is; A Coal Czar

By B. C. FORBES

J. P. MORGAN, who returned from Europe this week, has not yet had opportunity to get together with other directors of the U. S. Steel Corporation to talk over the selecting of a new chairman of the finance committee, and it is most improbable that any definite announcement will be made immediately after the directors hold their meeting next Tuesday.

Reports that Myron C. Taylor has been definitely decided upon are not correct. It would not be astonishing, however, if guesses that he will be chosen prove correct. No official announcement is likely until some little time after Tuesday's meeting.

The writer's definite announcement some time ago that James A. Farrell was slated to become the chief executive in succession to the late Judge Gary was based on thoroughly dependable information and no change in this program need be looked for. As a matter of fact, Mr. Farrell has been the only man considered for this honor, an honor which he has richly earned over a period of almost 20 years.

THE stock market is still a tug-of-war. Neither side is giving much ground, but the bulls have had slightly the better of it lately. Business hopes have been rising.

C. E. GROESBECK, the right-hand man of Sidney Z. Mitchell in the managing or supervising of scores of public utility properties throughout the country, has returned from a lengthy business tour through the West and the South. I got Mr. Groesbeck to give a brief picture of business conditions for readers of this column. Thus:

"Idaho has had excellent crops, with plenty of water. Live stock has brought good prices. Farmers are paying off loans and are in better shape than for a number of years past. In Utah one finds similar agricultural conditions. While the mining industry has been, of quiet, improvement has in. Salt Lake City is rapidly.

rnia continues to attract people from the Middle ith the result that practically Californian cities are increasing in population. They certainly have climate there. In Arizona, especially territory around the Verde and Salt River districts, very important development is going on. Citrus fruit is coming to the front. Production of alfifa is multiplying enormously. Phoenix and its environment are coming along most impressively.

"I traveled a great deal through the Texas empire. Oil and natural gas are doing wonders for East Texas. At Houston I saw 12 ocean-going ships—French, British, Dutch, Japanese, etc. Notwithstanding the amazing expansion of Houston as a port, Galveston is holding its own. Its cotton and sulphur shipments are very large. Galveston's climate is attracting many people, and it promises to become a notable winter resort.

"In New Orleans—as well as elsewhere—the people feel very strongly that Mississippi flood control should receive the prompt, earnest and effective attention of the federal government wholly apart from innumerable local projects. Lives are at stake.

"Mississippi flood protection is not and should not be made a political question.

"I found only very mild interest in national politics throughout my trip. I do not think that the approach of the presidential election is going to make very much difference in economic and business conditions."

I WOULD advise idle and ambitious workers to keep away from New York at present. In most lines there are more applicants than jobs.

A PENNSYLVANIA reader, who manages retail stores for a large coal company and who has invested $100,000 in the company's stock, which has paid no dividends for several years, asks:

"Is it possible that a czar could be selected from among such men as John J. Raskob, P. S. Dupont, or some big man in J. P. Morgan & Co. or in some other big enterprise with sufficient financial backing to bring about what Judge Gary and his associates did in the steel industry?"

Although I am not much of a believer in "czars," there is no industry—with the possible exception of the oil industry—that more urgently needs drastic overhauling such as a supreme dictator, given an absolutely free hand, could effect. Coal has been America's worst-managed industry all through the present century.

AMBASSADOR DWIGHT W. MORROW is making an excellent start in handling his delicate job in Mexico City. He is busy laying foundations for genuine understanding and friendships.

CHRISTMAS trade promises to come up to even the very high expectations generally formed.

MR. FRISBY DENOUNCES PENNY ARCADE SWINDLE

IS PARIS LIKE THIS? ONE CENT
Deposit Coin and See the Naughty Picture

I hurriedly located my purse, determined to make a thorough investigation and report back to the authorities.

I dropped my coin, and peeked. A light flashed on and I saw—

Views of Niagara.

I could hardly conceal my rage. Thousands of our young people are being bilked—their pennies snatched on a palpable misrepresentation. I decided to go straight to Police Commissioner McGinnis' home, where I parked at the curb and honked my horn repeatedly. He refused to come out, thus showing that even our authorities, who are supposed to uphold the laws, are controlled by the penny arcade trust.

MAKE IT FAST!

If I should die tonight,
And you should come to my cold corpse and say,
"Boy, you are going far away,
Where there flow streams of Scotch and rye,
Where there is no such word as 'dry,'"
I'd say to you, "Cut out the gush! Just nail me down and mark me 'Rush!'"

—B. B.

Members of the fashionable Riverside Drive Bicycle Club (Mrs. Dukinore Dunkes, president, above), have come out in support of Mister Frisby for Vice President, and will ride to Dubbs Ferry in his honor tomorrow evening.

Congressman at Large

WASHINGTON — I could scream I'm that annoyed over the way things are running in this country.

Last night, for instance, when most people were resting at home in their expensive upholstered furniture, I took my umbrella and went out to crusade against vice.

My feet reluctantly carried me to a penny peep arcade—one of those dens that have too long escaped my attention.

I found a shocking condition. For instance, my eyes gazed with indignation upon an announcement which read—

The Thimble Theater
Ruling the Waves

MR. LOTTS RECEIVES HIS LOCALS THE OTHER WAY 'ROUND — THINKA THAT, HENRY!!
HAW! HAW! HAW!
YOU SEE GEORGE - THE WINDOW TOWARD THE BROADCASTING STATION IS CLOSED - THE ONE OVER THERE, DIRECTLY OPPOSITE IS OPEN
SO THE WAVES COMING THIS WAY FROM THE STATION CAN'T GET IN - BUT THE WAVES GOING THE OTHER WAY - TRAVEL AROUND THE EARTH AND COME INTO THIS ROOM THROUGH THE OPEN WINDOW IN BACK OF YOU

BUGS BAER Says

POSTMASTER GENERAL NEW has opened up a bag of talk for the Christmas gifter.

He says that the government would be officially grateful if you grab your shopping early, bandcuff your packages carefully, toss them into the chute promptly and address them plainly.

When you start out sniping for Christmas bundles, with the usual retail generosity displayed by holiday aisle jumpers, don't delay your purchases.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

Don't temper with perishable instalments nor ask the floorwalker where he has moved the crushed porcelain department. Two short tempers make one long argument. That's arithmetic.

In order to make one person happy some shoppers figure they must make everybody else miserable. They manufacture snoots at the saleslady and tell the delivery man right to his face that they ain't at home.

The postmaster's advice to shop sudden is very good. But you neutralize the result if you take your bundles home and park them under the cellar steps for the mice to kick around.

The idea is to get them right into the parcels mail and on the way to the astonished recipient of your premature donation. This gives him a chance to retaliate with another quick bundle. Thus, the mail carrier gets two packages out of the way before December. And you can enjoy the holidays with a conscience clear as consomme.

Wrapping the bundle is another important habit. It's all right to tie up a relative's bundle with barbed wire. But, in this case, never seal the package with a kiss.

Use plenty of string, for in many cases the string is the most valuable material in the gift. String is always handy around homes and we know one thrifty woman who always manages to get a gift out of a hundred packages received by knitting herself a sweater out of the colored twine.

The address on the bundle should have some connection with the gift. If you want the right person to get it, say so on the label and don't make a medical recipe out of the name and number. Always put your return address on the wrapper.

The return address is not only helpful to the mail carrier, but it's a good hint to the giftee. If she has the slightest tincture of gratefulness in her rouge she will go out and buy you something twice as valuable.

But the chief item about Christmas bundles is to get them into the mail bag early. Postmaster General New urges this strictly.

This advice apparently doesn't include the Postmaster General for we haven't received his gift yet.

Get "Lame Duck" System Started Toward Discard

The Republican steamroller in the House proposes again to prevent a vote on the proposal of Senator Norris to end "lame ducks" and "short sessions" of Congress, with the evils that are attached to these things.

What is a "lame duck"? A representative or senator who goes right on legislating and drawing his salary after the people have defeated him at the polls.

Last November we elected a new Congress. A month later, in December, the same old Congress met and went on passing laws. The new Congress, which the people chose, will not assemble until next December 5, thirteen months after the people voted it into office.

The old arrangement is based upon conditions of 1790, when distant delegates to Congress traveled on horseback and it took them months to get there.

The old system is in the Constitution, so it must be amended to fit modern conditions. Senator Norris has proposed the necessary constitutional amendment, and it has been passed in the Senate, in each of the last three Congresses, the last time by a vote of 67 to 2. It would pass the House if the Republican bosses there would let it come to a vote, for there is no opposition to it. Representative Longworth announces that it will again be kept off the floor.

The Norris amendment provides that the terms of President and Congressmen shall end early in January instead of March 4, and that Congress each year is to meet in January.

Suppose that this amendment were in effect in the fall of 1928. The President, chosen in November, would be inaugurated in January, 1929. On the same date the newly elected Congress would meet. But under the present conditions something very different will happen. The old President will go on governing until March 4, 1929. The old Congressmen, including rejected members ("lame duck"), will meet a month after the election and continue legislating through the "short session" ending March 4, 1929, when congressional and presidential terms expire.

Nothing could be more unjust and undemocratic than a system which forces us to waste thirteen months before the Congress we elect can express our will in legislation. Nothing could be more unjust and undemocratic than to compel us to be governed during those thirteen months by a Congress we rejected.

The authority of the President ought to be used to force the leaders to allow a vote on this vital improvement in our system.

We Buy and Prosper

Greater prosperity than this land has ever known—exceeding even that of the past year, which reached unprecedented heights—is predicted by President Coolidge for 1928.

Expert students of business conditions agree, and declare the slowing down of trade noted during the past few weeks is only a temporary let-up—getting a long breath for the activity ahead.

We all want prosperity, which touches everybody pleasantly, at least to some degree. But to get prosperity and keep it, we must all help.

There are a lot of complicated factors in what are known as "good times." The economists aren't unanimous in their explanations of what causes the country to boom. Yet one thing appears certain—prosperity can't exist without general, enthusiastic buying by the public.

Prosperity—otherwise American conditions of superior living—means various things to various individuals, ranging from meat every day to a winter in Florida. The more thoroughly people everywhere partake of prosperity's blessings, the greater it seems to grow.

That is, the more things people buy, the more things must be produced for them to buy; demand makes output, and output makes work, and work makes money for people to spend.

It's a sort of circle, you see, or a wheel; and everybody has a part in keeping the wheel rolling.

Once in awhile the United States suffers from an attack of cold feet about its prosperity. Caution develops and spreads. We wear our old hats a bit longer, though we could afford new ones; postpone purchasing the new living-room furniture or building the addition to the factory; we get along without flowers on the table, a better automobile, porterhouse steak or books. That becomes what is called a "buyers' strike."

Let a buyers' strike persist, and presently prosperity takes a vacation.

The way to get going on that bigger prosperity just around the corner is to accept it as a fact and proceed to enjoy it; for each person to buy what he wants, when he wants it; to get himself as large a slice of pleasant living as he can afford—NOW.

We can encourage prosperity to stick around indefinitely by the comfortable and simple method of using it.

Roads—By the U. S.

Go West, young man, in an automobile after the modern fashion, and how will you travel?

Smoothly enough, over paved roads, until you pass the Mississippi; then on highways that vary from concrete to sand, from passable macadam to impassable mud, over rivers adequately bridged and through rivers not bridged at all, along mountain trails wide enough for one car at a time—until toward the end of your journey you hit up-to-date roads again, and ride easily.

Good roads and bad roads, depending on the progressiveness and wealth of the states you traverse—but everywhere you will encounter only LOCAL roads, that wind and twist and pile up mileage on the speedometer; roads that carry you north, northwest, south or southwest for long distances, when the direction you WANT to go, is WEST.

And as you follow a thousand detours around Robin Hood's barn to maintain the general course that shall take you at last to your Far Western destination, you will demand many times:

"Why, in the name of millions of motorists, doesn't this great, rich, United States build at least one straightout, wide, paved, wonderful highway right across its width from coast to coast?"

That is precisely what this great, rich United States must do ten years hence, but NOW.

We have fooled along with a Federal aid road scheme, helping states to build highways, which doesn't work very well. A large proportion of the roads so improved are merely graded sand, clay or gravel. They are not paved, permanent, unbroken trunk lines.

Passage by Congress of a measure similar to that introduced in 1926, called the Holaday bill, would do what every thinking American realizes should be done. This bill "provides for the construction, maintenance and regulation within and by the United States of a nation-wide system of durable hard-surfaced post roads."

Through transcontinental highways, United States built, owned, regulated and maintained, to boom transportation and stimulate the prosperity of the nation—tell your Congressman we must have them speedily.

DAVID AND GOLIATH

Garrett P Serviss Says:

By the Light of the Moon

"And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night; He made the stars also."—Genesis.

LAST July I read of the Berks county farmers in Pennsylvania working all night long by the light of the full moon, and taking their rest by day, in order to escape the overwhelming heat of the sun. We do not often hear of this practice, but it is not infrequent in hot countries. The full moon is a reflector, 2,000 miles in diameter, set up in the sky opposite to the sun, when the latter is hidden from us behind the earth, but not hidden from the moon.

The apparent size of the moon is practically the same as that of the sun (about half a degree in diameter), though its rocky surface sends back by reflection only about 7 per cent of the sunlight that falls upon it. Yet, the brightness of moonlight on the earth as compared with that of sunlight is only as 1 to 465,000. Its power to illuminate a surface is about equal to that of a standard candle at a distance of one meter (3.28 feet).

When you see the light of the full moon flooding a landscape you may think that these are under-estimates of its brightness. The old rhyme—

"Boys and girls come out to play;
The moon doth shine as bright as day," seems to you a much more accurate description of that beautiful silvery illumination which makes a fairyland of the earth, turning the tree shadows to ebon arabesques and making bits of water gleam like polished metal. At any rate, the full moon is a very satisfactory substitute for the sun on open land, where the sharpest visibility of details is not required, and there are many of the farmers' labors that can be well performed by its aid. The refreshing coolness of the moonlight air largely compensates for the lack of clearer vision.

Traveling by moonlight is an exquisite enjoyment that smacks of the magical in the unexpectedness and strange beauty of the scenes that it unrolls before fascinated eyes. On wide water courses, just as at sea, moonlit voyaging affords pleasure that day cannot match. Science tells us that the quality of moonlight is the same as that of sunlight, "showing a spectrum identical in every detail with that of light coming directly from the sun itself." This is not to be disputed; but science has no sense for perceiving or measuring the thousand influences with which nature affects the soul. Whatever the source of the difference, or from however many accessory circumstances it may arise, all sensitive natures are keenly aware that, in the quality of its effects on humanity, moonlight is by no means identical with sunlight. When the imagination is touched, all things are different.

Be Considerate

COURTESY is the outcome of thoughtfulness.

Consideration for the feelings of others and the needs of companions, stamps its possessor as a true gentleman or lady.

Much is said nowadays about charm and charm schools and methods to attract others to yourself.

But there are some persons that you have seen and known who have never taken a lesson in the subtle art of capturing hearts and attention. They are so kindly, helpful and interested in doing things for others that they stand out in your mind.

Courtesy can be cultivated by thinking a little more of what the other fellow would like and a little less of what you yourself want.

Home is the place to start practicing courtesy.

A happy home is a place where there is loving thoughtfulness for the other.

Is it altogether the fault of the other members of your family if courtesy is not practiced in your home?

LISTEN, WORLD! ELSIE ROBINSON Says: Try Mental Boxing

HAVE you a fear complex? Do your soft, pampered body and mind shrink from rough contact? And are you becoming physically and spiritually unfit as a consequence? Then, according to Professor Frank L. Kleeberger, of the Physical Education Department of the University of California, you should try boxing.

"If a man is able to take care of himself physically, he is very seldom neurotic or morbidly introspective," he declares. "Physical training gives a man self-confidence, poise and bravery."

That's good advice and it goes for more than one kind of boxing. Most of us have "fear complexes," but we can't all strap on the padded gloves.

But there is a kind of boxing which will tighten up our sagging spirits, wipe the suet off our pampered minds, and make us brave and proud and supple once more—and that is the stimulating give and take of OPPOSITION.

The swift uppercut of criticism—

The smashing wallop of argument—

The tingling attack of new thoughts, fresh opinions, startling facts, revolutionary theories—

That's the sort of boxing most of us need to face. That's the thing that will drive the fear out of us and restore our punch and pep. How long since YOU faced that sort of boxing?

How much of a sport are YOU under criticism?

How well do YOU keep your temper during argument?

How willing are YOU to consider new ideas?

Take your family life, for instance. Will you let your child differ with you, or do you call such difference "disrespect" or "impudence?" Does your husband or your wife dare argue with you—or do you straightaway fly into a tantrum or get your feelings hurt?

How about politics—

Will you listen patiently while a Socialist states his cause or do you immediately brand him as a nut?

Can you be calm during a discussion of Communism—or do you see red and want the speaker deported?

What's your attitude toward companionate marriage? Birth control? Freer, franker divorces? Sex education? Government supervision of children? Are you willing that these things should be discussed from your pulpit, in your club, at your P. T. A. meetings? Or do you grow horrified at the very suggestion?

Think it over. Don't you need a little stirring up? Aren't you getting a bit stringy or flabby? Isn't there some connection, perhaps, between your peevishness and prejudice and that strange, bitter feeling of failure, that has been creeping over you lately? Hadn't you better face a little mental boxing?

New York Day by Day

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Broadway is a street where thousands wait for breaks—that never come. No other section of America seems to inspire such vain hope. Like the underpinning of a gleaming ocean liner at night, Broadway is cloyed with barnacles that cannot shake loose.

Actors, actresses, playwrights and song writers form the bulk of the hopeful guild. The few who succeed drive others on and on to a smiling sort of starvation. Hope inspires them to live in the meanest back rooms on the scantiest fare in uncomplaining resignation.

Bubble after bubble bursts, but they continue to chase. Just a break is all they ask, and they point to those who endured and won. But always they face the tragic "if." These are not all workless dreamers without talent.

They labor more industriously than most folk at salaried jobs. Those aspiring to the stage are studying and making tiresome rounds of agencies. The playwrights and song makers are writing, revamping and trying to sell their wares with a rare zeal.

The biggest lure is playwriting. One fair success and they can hang up their hat at the Ritz. This summer a young man was carted out of a cobwebby Greenwich Village attic to a hospital to be treated for malnutrition. In his room were 100 finished plays.

All have heard that myth of Eugene Walter sleeping on park benches before success came and of this one and that one undergoing the long travail and are buoyed through despairing days. They are bedeviled victims of a phantom glory.

There are men and women who have spent much of their lives trying to fashion a popular song. Now and then they manage to put over a tune that has a fleeting success and that spurs them to renewed zeal. To the end they have unlimited faith in Broadway's pompous, seductive and foolish promises.

A night club offers a grim touch, turning into hilarity. As the gayety reaches a height, several determined and derbied gentlemen burst into the room asking everybody to remain seated. Many could not rise if they tried. The strangers then move from table to table inspecting what is in glasses, asking for names and then suddenly at a crash of the orchestra snap into a dance number. It is elegant fun if you don't faint. The night I was there I didn't faint. I just began sobbing out loud.

Broadway has taken this season to what is called "the dead pan comedian." He is the dumb-type who never smiles.

Speaking of fright, there is something pitiable about the notice of a young millionaire sprig in a society paper. In recounting his confinement for a nervous breakdown, it concludes: "He recently has been hunting in Canada, where he saw a moose." But I know how he felt. I was once the dramatic figure in a home town paper item headed: "Local Boy Hooked by Cow."

* * *

Ship news and City Hall reporters are supposed to be the hoity toity fair-haired boys on Park Row. They have that certain something—manicures, ribbon bands to eyeglasses and cane to flick under the noses of lesser assignment men. The second string dramatic critic—at least in the eyes of the dramatic critics—occupy the low rung in the reportorial ladder. The hard-boiled babies of the journalistic world are the camera men. They are sent out to get pictures and they get them. They think no more of telling a Wall street magnate to turn his head this way and that than they do of telling a returning actress on shipboard to lift her skirts above the knees. As one shouted to a coy lady recently: "Legs is what the public wants, keddy—legs." He got them for his public.

The highest salaried New York newspaper men are dramatic critics on the morning newspapers. Their salaries are said to range from $15,000 to $25,000 a year. And they swing canes and everything, too.

The Prize Beauty

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One prize beauty is suing her husband for divorce. It seems that having a husband interfered with her getting the prize.

This is about the sort of crop we can expect from a prize-beauty movement. Why a prize beauty, anyhow? If you are beautiful you are beautiful and that is no fault of yours. God gave you the charm and why should you boast of it as something in which you had a part yourself?

Much of the good work in this world is done by the homely girls. Homely girls make the best wives. Many a man in selecting a mate steers shy of a beauty because he does not care to have so much competition.

Why not have a competition over something that amounts to something? Over the rapidest typist, the most successful business woman, the best housekeeper, the woman who has the most healthy children or something like that.

A prize might also be given, suggests one correspondent, to the most afflicted person and experts be called on to testify about crippled legs or the lack of hands or blindness or deafness. This at least would call attention to a person's needs and probably bring relief.

The prize beauty business seems to be after all just an appeal to vanity. As a rule, the prize beauties do not score very heavily in this world's achievements.

A beautiful face or figure is not even the greatest allurement to a man, if that is what one had in mind. Experts say that neither Cleopatra, Anastasia nor Ninon de l'Enclos, who were some charmers, were particularly endowed with feminine pulchritude.

The fact is that a beautiful spirit can enliven and make to shine a homely face. Besides this a beautiful spirit is easier to live with in the long run than a beautiful face which conceals an ugly spirit.

The Hours

HERE is a gift you may use as you will: bright, shining hours that blossom with dawn—what will you do with them, how will you fill each golden chalice ere day is withdrawn? Others may bring to you laughter and gold, brimming your life with the treasures men prize; only time's gifts are too rare to be sold, only time brings them and, bringing them, flies! Bright, shining hours, gift highest of all; what will you write on the scroll they unfold, so with day ended, when soft shadows fall, part of your innermost self will be told, part of the thought and the toils that you spent, part of the vision and purpose you knew? Ah, in your use of it, be not content save as your efforts are stainless and true!

Sensitive Plants

LET'S go to school to the encyclopedia for a little.

Speaking of the sensitive plant our tutor says:

"At the approach of night the leaflets all fold together; and the common foodstalk bends towards the stem; at sunrise the leaves gradually unfold, and recover their usual state.

"So far, this is evidently the effect of light, but the same phenomena take place on touching the plant roughly, only that it recovers itself in a short period."

If you have a surplus stock of envy on hand you might expend it on the botanists who are as familiar with the personalities of plants as they are with the willow ware on the table.

Then trade in your envy for a bit of gumption and a text book and strike up acquaintance with some of the plant geniuses.

Some years ago I knew a clod married to a sunbeam. He was as rough as an Alpine crag and she as delicate as a cameo.

And the burly brute never realized that he was wedded to a sensitive plant but snapped her in two like a twig every time he entered her presence.

Until one day a friend told him in perpendicular English with the loud pedal on the job. And the next day that husband took home to his wife a dream of fragrance and beauty from the florist's shop. And the sensitive plant lifted her eyes and heart to the sunlight.

Millions of children are brutalized by hickory parents who don't know they are dealing with sensitive plants.

Kisses beat curses sixteen to one when it comes to the training of the little citizens of God's kingdom.

Rough hands will kill them with a single touch while tenderness may give to the world the aromatic fragrance of genius.

Did you ever see a sensitive plant?
